KAISER ESCAPES CRIME PENALTY

GIRL OF 14 LURED BY CITY LIFE

Lured by the white lights of Broadway to run away from home, fourteen-year-old Ida Dasheff of No. 58 Bellingham street, Chelsea, picked up in the streets by the New York police, was arraigned today in the Children's Court. Ida had wandered to West One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street when encountered by Patrolman S. K. Tindlo.

She told the police at first that she had been kidnaped by two young men, taken to New York on the Fall River line and deserted. When arraigned before Magistrate Mayo, however, she admitted that it was the call of the big city that had led her to desert her school and home.

Ida is very small for her age. It was her diminutiveness and her apparently aimless wandering that first attracted the notice of Patrolman Tindlo. She told the court that the principal of her school had sent her home for tardiness, and that she had been ashamed to face her parents. She disappeared on Monday.

Ida is a pupil at the Shurtleff Grammar school, of which Fred Pitcher is principal. Her story of being sent home was confirmed today by her sister Bessie, to a Boston American reporter.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dasheff.

"Ida is in the graduating class," said her sister. "She had been late several times, and was late again on Monday morning. The principal, Fred Pitcher, sent her home.

"We didn't know anything about this until later in the day, when Ida failed to show up for luncheon or after school. We told our relatives and all turned out to search for her, and at last we notified the police. Yesterday the Chelsea police were notified by the New York police that Ida had been picked up by them there.

"We have a sister, Mrs. Harry Cohen, living in Newark, N. J. Ida might have started out to visit her. She was a girl who saved her money, and she received plenty of it from the family."

Boston American's five-cent fish stores swamped with business!

Nothing ever like it seen in the history of the city!

Crowds of buyers simply carting away low-cost fish. Other crowds demanding more fish. Still more calling the American office by phone to find out the nearest fish store.

That's the picture of what happened today when the American opened four new fish-at-cost stores. The early morning rush swept the counters clear.

A few hours and buyers temporarily had to be told "all sold out." The task of supplying the thousands of pounds of fish, of getting it from the fish pier to the stores threatened to break down the delivery system.

But the American, with customary energy, commandeered more auto trucks, and long before noon the

EDWARDS IGNORED AS HERO

People Wonder Why Former Leader of 26th Receives No Honors of War

Successive awards of military decorations among the rank and file of our army have caused increasing comment over the absence of any Distinguished Service medal so far for Major-General Clarence R. Edwards.

The question is being asked with more and more emphasis by the public, particularly the Boston and New England public:

"Why is General Edwards allowed to go unsolced?"

The interest in this is acute in this section of the country, not only because General Edwards is now commanding the Northeast Department again, but especially because it was General Edwards who commanded the 26th Division—the famous "Yankee Division"—through campaigns and battles that won undying glory for the 26th in France.

BATTLE IN BERLIN STREETS

Many Killed in Clash Between Spartacans and Troops Loyal to Government

Berlin, March 4.—A mob in Alexander Platz today attacked two Americans, believed to be Red Cross workers, but was driven off by troops, who fired upon them. The Americans were riding in a taxicab when attacked.

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, March 4, via London, March 5.—The first big clash between the Spartacans and government troops occurred at noon today in Alexander Platz, when the latter, without any warning, began firing upon civilians. I saw from six to fifteen persons killed. After a bloody battle the government troops recaptured the police station this evening.

Later estimates are that twenty were killed in the city and eleven at

Ex-Kaiser Indicted as World's Arch-Criminal

The former-Kaiser has been indicted at the bar of public opinion as the arch-murderer and pirate of all time.

He has literally been indicted, too. At least one American jury returned a "true bill" against him on a charge of murder.

The general and specific crimes laid at the Kaiser's door, on the basis that he was responsible for the war, include the following:

Wholesale murder and piracy.
Firing on undefended localities.
Failure to recognize Red Cross emblems.
Bombardment of hospitals.
Pillage and purposeless destruction.
Mistreatment of helpless men and women.

Director-General Hopes to Solve Problem Without Relinquishing Government Contract

Washington, March 5.—No immediate relinquishment of Federal control of the railroads to their private owners is contemplated, even though failure of the Sixty-fifth Congress to appropriate $750,000,000 left the railroad administration virtually without money and with millions of dollars in back debts, Director-General of Railways Hines declared this afternoon. "My first purpose is to try and solve the problem in another way," he said.

PRESIDENT OFF ON PEACE MISSION

By International News Service.

Paris, March 5.—The commission of jurists appointed to consider the war guilt of the ex-Kaiser and others, has decided that the sovereign of a State cannot be proceeded against, but the decision must be ratified by the peace conference as a whole before it is effective. The commission's report on German crimes will be ready by the end of the week, and will eclipse any previous revelations. Names of responsible persons have been secured and their surrender will be demanded.

New York, March 5.—With the plaudits of the American metropolis ringing about him and supremely confident of the support of the whole country on his League of Nations idea, President Woodrow Wilson began his second journey to France today.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and a large party, sailed from Hoboken on the liner George Washington at 8:15 o'clock.

"Every statement that I made in my New York speech last night and every word I said before leaving Washington will be understood by the people if not by certain politicians," said President Wilson before the liner sailed.

The preliminary peace treaty will be the first business taken up by the Peace Conference when the President reaches Paris, Mr. Wilson let it be known. The Germans and the other powers formerly associated with Germany will then be in a position to participate in the final negotiations.

The President seemed tired, but was cheerful and smiled as he spoke.

He said he was well pleased with the general situation and was supremely confident that the people of the United States will continue to back up his endeavors at the conference.

"The responsibility of those who blocked necessary legislation in Washington during the closing days of Congress is certainly known to the people, and that responsibility does not have to be shared," continued President Wilson.

GREAT WAVE OF PROSPERITY IS PREDICTED BY SECRETARY GLASS

GOVERNORS URGED TO ADOPT POLICY FOR BUSINESS

By International News Service.

Washington, March 5.—"We have a great future immediately at hand—prosperity is before us, and we cannot afford to fall back," Secretary of the Treasury Glass today told the reconstruction conference of Governors and Mayors in the east room of the White House.

"The government is intensely desirous of seeing formulated a certain policy that business may follow—the government wants to see business go forward," the secretary added, urging that some definite policy come out of the three-day conference which closed today.

Glowing tributes to organized labor for its loyalty to State and municipal authorities in aiding to check Bolshevist propaganda, featured the third day's session.

Word was brought to the conference that President Wilson has kept down trouble to a minimum in most of the New England industrial centres," Mayor Hurley declared. "Union leaders are patriotic and loyal, and they despise the activities of that vicious type of criminals of the enemy alien type who are in our midst to stir up trouble. Most of the trouble in our midst is due to these foreigners who advocate the overthrow of the government. They are not fit to live here and should be cast out."

SOLDIER PROBLEM DISCUSSED.

The problem of finding jobs for returning soldiers could more easily be solved if they could be demobilized in their own camps, many of the executives asserted. Mayor Rolph favored the adoption of a resolution urging that the war Department take such a course.

Resumption of private and public building construction was put forth as a prime need of the day by Ernest T. Trigg, president of the National Federation of Construction Industries.

HEALTH FUND DRIVE TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

The opinion of health experts that a recurrence of the influenza epidemic is inevitable will be used as an effective argument in the six-day campaign for funds for the Boston Dispensary, Baby Hygiene Association and District Nursing Association, which opens Monday. The allied organizations are seeking $270,000 and nearly 10,000 active workers will be engaged. Chairman William A. Muller points to the excellent work accomplished by the three institutions during the last outbreak of influenza as the best reasons for generosity on the part of the public.

BOY GRABS $272 AND DASHES FROM STORE

Ten-Year-Old Lad Scatters Some of It Along Broadway, Chelsea

Money was scattered along Broadway, Chelsea, today, following the robbery of a store by a ten-year-old boy, who was later arrested.

Hena Seltzer, a widow with six children, conducts a small store at No. 128 Broadway. While talking with a neighbor in front of her place a ten-year-old boy sneaked in behind the counter and took a wallet containing $272 in cash. He dashed into the street and ran along Broadway, turning into Bellingham square.

Mrs. Seltzer raised a cry that attracted the attention of a passing teamster. He grabbed the youngster and took $225 of the money away from him and turned it over to the police. The boy, however, managed to break away and made good his escape, dropping money along the way.

He ran into Bellingham square and bought a watch, for he tendering a $10 bill in payment. The clerk gave him the watch, but told him to tell his mother to come for the change.

Peculiarly suited to mine use.

Immediately after he walked into a pawnshop, and Patrolmen Timothy Carrington and Herbert Bradley took him into custody. He was later given over to his mother, who promised to appear in court with him tomorrow. She stated that he had been to the Lyman School, and that he was so unaccustomed to that they sent him back home again. All but $10 of the stolen money has been recovered.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the United States Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to location of the various units appear every day in this column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the department toward securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not operated as a question and answer column, but is working in connection with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestions for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

BLOODY BATTLE IN STREETS OF BERLIN

Lichtenberg when the Reds tried to storm the police station.

A state of siege has been proclaimed at Hamborn and Halle. The strike is spreading.

There is every indication that the independents and Spartacans are backed by 50,000 or 60,000 troops, including the republican guard, numbering about 15,000.

The government (headed by President Ebert) may be forced out within twenty-four hours. In one clash between independents and government troops in Alexander Platz four noncoms were shot.

While riding in a cab I saw a number of shooting affrays. At one place a mob charged three cafes, trying to seize some army officers who were dining there, but were driven off. One young girl, who was caught in the line of fire in Alexander Platz, had the top of her head shot off. Both the Red Guards and the government forces used machine guns.

Transportation is at a standstill, and thousands of officers and employes walk miles from the suburbs to reach the city.

Twenty police stations are now held by the independents and Spartacides. Police headquarters were seized by a marine division and several government soldiers who were found there were seized and disarmed.

Copenhagen, March 5. — Captain Hartung, of the German army, and Lieutenants Vogel and Leipmann have been arrested by the Spartacides at Berlin, charged with causing the death of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemberg, two Red leaders, according to advices from Berlin today. They will probably be shot.

TAUNTON MAYOR BACKS WAR BONUS

Commander Wood of Marlboro G. A. R. Post Also Commends American's Petition

The Mayor of Taunton and the commander of the Grand Army post at Marlboro are among the latest to voice unstinted approval of the Boston American's petition for six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines.

Mayor J. William Flood declared that the city of Taunton is solidly behind the petition, and Commander Stillman P. Wood of the Marlboro G. A. R. Post, and a former member of the city government, declares that the returning soldiers, sailors and marines ought to be entitled to six months' extra pay considering that they had not left in war wages.

Said Mayor Flood: "I am strongly in favor of the Boston American's petition for six months' pay and I know that the citizens of Taunton in general are solidly behind me in this matter.

$60 HELD INSUFFICIENT.

"I am glad that the boys are going to get $60 right away under the revenue bill, but that is small, and while it will help some I should feel that the government was offering them only a mite if I were not confident that the six months' pay measure would be passed by Congress."

Mayor Wood went to Washington to attend a conference of mayors at the White House, and declared before leaving that he would personally see each of the Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators and urge them to speak and vote in behalf of the petition.

Commander Stillman P. Wood in expressing his views said that six months' pay is as little return for the sacrifice of the men of all branches of the service as the government ought to give. He said:

"When I think that our boys were going through untold suffering for a bare $16 a month in order that our institutions might survive, while other men were getting the highest wages of their lives, it makes a deep impression upon me. It is for this reason that I say the boys who have done so much for us ought to get the six months' extra pay. It is as little as we can do for them."

In the few brief weeks that have elapsed since the discharge of soldiers and sailors, many cases of suffering through lack of funds and work have come to the attention of officials in many cities and towns throughout the State. As more men are discharged, glutting the labor market, the number is bound to increase unless, as Mayor Flood points out, the government provides against it.

SOLDIERS LACK FUNDS.

"Since the soldiers have been coming home, many pitiable cases have come to my attention," he asserted. "The men come home 'broke.' They were ready to give their lives for their country, but now that the war is over they are sent home to seek jobs and in many cases, especially men come home without funds and are expected to look out for themselves."

The officers are not much better off than the men, one officer who is still in service states.

"I don't know of any officer who won't come home 'broke,'" he said. "An officer has to buy his own equipment and replace it when worn out. He has to pay for his meals, make his allotments for insurance and allowances for those he leaves behind. Then there are often personal obligations which must be kept up.

"Many people think an officer's salary is clear velvet, but it isn't. When he gets through paying his expenses out of it and makes allotments and allowances there isn't much left. There will be mighty few officers who will come home with much more money than a buck private."

GIRL TURNS AUTO THIEF WHEN SHE FINDS LOVE IS BETRAYED

BALKED AT TAKING LIFE

Found Dangers of Work Fascinating; Confession Startles Police

A pretty girl, twenty-two, who gave her name as Florence Barrington of Lawrence, is held by the Philadelphia police, following her confession that she had stolen twenty automobiles in the last four months.

In Lawrence today it was learned she had a police record. She was held four years ago charged with receiving stolen goods. At that time she was going about with Arthur Barrington, who had an alias of "Mr. Hodge," and they were reputed to be married. They lived in Lowell.

Barrington, alias Hodge, was arrested for breaking and entering two houses in Lawrence and for having sold in Boston the jewelry and other effects taken.

The girl said she came of good family and at one time worked in the Lawrence mills.

She told the Philadelphia police that her name was Duke, and when fifteen years old was married to Arthur Barrington, who a short time ago was sent to prison for ten years for a series of burglaries in Philadelphia.

HUSBAND HAS JAIL RECORD.

The husband was known to the police as "English Tommy." His arrest and imprisonment was her first knowledge that he was a thief, the girl said.

After he was sent to prison she became heartbroken. Finally she turned to the underworld in the hope of forgetting her sorrow. She was arrested six months ago as a disorderly person and sent to the reformatory.

When she was released she fell in with men who were in the business of stealing automobiles.

She soon found that this form of thievery was easy, she told the police, and to her it was a lot of fun."

According to Captain of Detectives Souder in Philadelphia, the young woman made a startling confession. While being questioned she implicated John Mohr, garage owner at Millville, in whose place stolen cars were recovered, and who was held in heavy bail by the New Jersey authorities, and two weeks ago in $10,000 bail for court in Philadelphia.

The young woman was dressed in a sport suit when arraigned before Magistrate Pennock in a Philadelphia police court. She is attractive, with dark hair and brown eyes, and is of medium build.

During the testimony of Captain Souder she interrupted to make corrections as to her confession. Several times Captain Souder stopped his testimony and asked her certain details. Without a moment's hesitation she answered the questions.

According to Captain Souder, the girl confessed she assisted four men in holding up a driver and his helper on an American Express railway truck on Market street, Philadelphia, the day after the machine of a man named Hall was stolen.

The girl was driving the stolen motor car containing four men. Captain Souder said. She drove up to the truck and one of the men summoned the driver and helper. At the point of a revolver they were ordered into the Hall machine, while one of the motor thieves boarded the truck and drove away.

REFUSED TO COMMIT MURDER.

The truck stalled. The men in the Hall machine, which had followed the truck, became enraged and threatened to kill the truck driver and helper.

"I was afraid they would be murdered, and while I stole cars, I would not stoop to that crime," she is alleged to have told Captain Souder. "I started up the motor of the machine I was driving and crashed into a telegraph pole, wrecking the car."

The wrecked machine and the truck were abandoned by the motor thieves.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY OF BANK CHECK

Clothing Company Proceeds Against Max Rosenthal for Financial Irregularities

Max Rosenthal, who says his home is in Providence, was arraigned before Judge Palmer in the Roxbury Court today, charged with forging a check on the People's National Bank for $250 and with attempted larceny of that amount. The signature Rosenthal is charged with forging is that of his employer, Harry Silver, proprietor of the Outlook Clothing Company, at No. 1343 Washington street.

Rosenthal presented a check to the bank calling for $250 and asked for payment in gold, it is alleged, stating that his employer was about to hold a sale. The bank officials informed him they were unable to furnish so large an amount in gold. Whereupon Rosenthal asked for the money in bills.

The bank officials telephoned his employer to get information concerning the unusual demand for payment in gold and discovered that Silver had not issue the check. The police were notified and Rosenthal was held at the bank until the arrival of officers.

Rosenthal pleaded not guilty to both charges. He was held in $5,000 bonds for the Grand Jury.

SAYS FISH PIER SAVED SMALL DEALERS

Attorney in Final Arguments of Trial Defends Acts of Alleged Combine

The dealers at the Boston Fish Pier act within their rights in establishing a common room to which are admitted dealers who carry on establishments at the pier, Addison C. Burnham, counsel for the Boston Fish Pier Company and twenty-eight other defendants, said today in the United States Circuit Court.

The operation of the exchange at the fish pier is not in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, he said during the final arguments for the defendants in the case of the Federal government against the Boston Fish Pier Company and other defendants, forty in all.

Many small fish dealers in Boston would have committed "business suicide" had not they agreed to become a part of the Boston Fish Pier Company at the time this company was formed, Attorney Burnham pointed out in his argument.

"An evolution was taking place in the industry. It was plain and apparent that the business was, in the future, to be conducted by large companies with large facilities for combining production and distribution on a large scale. If the Boston Fish Pier Company had not been formed many of the concerns whose businesses were combined by the formation of the company would have been obliged to go out of business and any of the twenty-eight concerns, in fact, might have attempted to continue in business would have done so with a much curtailed power to hold and develop their businesses."

HARBOR TIE-UP STIFFENS IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, March 5.—The tie-up of the port, resulting from the strike of 16,000 marine workers, which went into effect yesterday, was more complete today and congestion was reported at most of the local docks.

Three additional ferry lines were stopped as the result of the walkout of their crews, and extra trains had to be operated in the Hudson tubes in order to handle the great crowds of commuters.

Municipal ferries were pressed into service to convey the thousands of ship workers on Shooters and Staten Islands. Practically every boat of the various towing companies lay idle in the harbor, with only an occasional tug manned by strikebreakers in service.

Efforts to stop the operation of government boats engaged at the big Bush terminal were begun by strike leaders today, who telegraphed to Washington charging that these vessels were violating the order of the United States Shipping Board by engaging in private work.

Mayor Hylan, who returned to the city because of the strike, is expected to take some action in the situation today. A movement also is on foot to bring about mediation by officials of the Department of Labor. Representatives of the boat-owners and union leaders declared again today that they were "in the fight to a finish."

STRIKERS MOVE TO OUST CARR AT LAWRENCE

Lawrence, March 5.—A movement to oust Police Commissioner Peter Carr was instituted today by strike leaders. Although they declined to admit specifically that this was their aim, "recall" papers were taken out at City Hall, and Thomas G. Connolly of Boston, attorney for the strikers, made inquiries regarding recall procedure.

The charges against Carr will be inefficiency and unfair treatment of strikers, it is stated. They are resentful of his attitude in refusing them permits for parades and meetings.

Samuel Bramhall, chairman of the general strike committee, secured the blanks providing for recall of a public official. Attorney Connolly was told in answer to his inquiries that a number of signatures equal to one-fourth the number of votes cast at the election would be required. The vote in this case was 5,725.

Police Commissioner Carr expressed indifference to the action of the leaders. "This matter causes me very little concern," said he. "I shall continue to do my duty in holding down the lawless element of Lawrence."

HUNT 'MYSTERY MAN' IN SOUTH END TRAGEDY

Letter-Writer Signing 'M. D. S.' Adds to Tangle in the 'Dr. Curtis' Case

Who was the "mystery man" found dead at No. 11 Upton street?

Who hired the room where the body was found?

What was the cause of death?

Who is the woman that wrote him a letter signed "M. D. S."?

Where is Dr. Allen B. Curtis of Manchester, N. H.?

What part do East Indian occult sciences play in the case?

These questions today engrossed the police of several cities, following new developments in the South End mystery.

The police had apparently established that the dead man was Dr. Allen B. Curtis of Manchester, N. H., when it developed that letters in Dr. Curtis' hand, written and posted since the discovery of the body, had been received in Manchester. The letters were mailed in East Boston.

LETTERS TO DOCTOR.

The description of the body answered that of Dr. Curtis, who has been missing for some time. Pockets of the dead man's clothing contained three letters addressed to Dr. Curtis. All were from women; one was from the mysterious "M. D. S."

Mystery after mystery has cropped up since the case came to light. Even before discovery of the body Saturday noon, there was a telephone call notifying the police that a man at the address in question had died of gas poisoning. When an ambulance arrived, it was denied that anyone there needed assistance.

The body, when discovered, proved not to be that of the man who had hired the room. This was reported by the landlord, John Rhodenhiser. According to his statement the man who engaged the room was six feet tall, was shabbily dressed, with no overcoat, and brought with him an alarm clock.

The body found is only five feet seven inches, and was well dressed, with an overcoat. The alarm clock has mysteriously disappeared.

Harry Glazier of Manchester, an intimate friend of Dr. Curtis, arrived in Boston today to view the body at the undertakers and identify it if possible.

STUDIED OCCULT SCIENCE.

Dr. Curtis had lived in Manchester only a few months. Originally a doctor of medicine, he had given up his practice for the study of astrology and occult sciences, which he had studied in India. For many years, it was said to be a skilled medium. He came from California, a graduate of the University there, and had relatives at San Jose. He left Manchester last Thursday, well supplied with money, on a mission for a wealthy woman client which would have taken him to New York, Washington and Philadelphia. The woman's son, it is said, was in trouble with military authorities and faced a 20-year sentence for alleged evasion of the draft.

According to Rhodenhiser, the man who hired the room said that he had a sister in Attleboro who kept a lodging house.

The body was examined by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, who found no adequate cause of death. Experts today were engaged in analyzing the contents of the stomach. Their report will not be returned for some days.

U. S. MENACED WITH TIE-UP OF PHONES

Telegraphic Communication May Also Be Paralyzed by Strike of Operators

Washington, March 5.—The United States faces a simultaneous stoppage of both telephonic and telegraphic communication in the country over.

It is announced at the headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers that the strike vote of the organized telephone operators of the country was overwhelmingly in favor of such a strike.

If the telegraph operators also vote to strike, as is expected, there will be a complete tie-up of wire communication throughout the United States.

In New England the tabulated vote was 7,444 for the strike and only 20 votes against, according to John J. Purcell, international representative of the brotherhood. On the Pacific Coast the vote was 95 per cent. in favor of a strike.

The date of the telephone strike will be fixed by the executive board of the International Brotherhood, which meanwhile is taking a referendum as to the per capita tax to be levied upon the 135,000 members to support the strike. It is expected that a fund of $600,000 will be raised immediately for that purpose.

BOSTON BREWERIES DRY BY MAY 1

Boston breweries say that by May 1 their supply of intoxicating beverages will have been distributed to the retail trade and their plants turned over to the manufacture of "soft drinks," or else to the junkman.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of property will have to be scrapped at a small fraction of its original cost, they say, as breweries' plants and equipment cannot be used for anything else.

A. J. Houghton Company, the Harvard Brewing Company and the Burkhardt Brewing Company will make notice. The Massachusetts Breweries Company's management is undecided as to its course, while Reuter & Co., who have exhausted their stock of ale, are holding their organization intact in the hope of relief. P. C. Haffenreffer of Haffenreffer & Co. states that the company's plant, valued at $1,000,000, has been dedicated by engineers as almost a dead loss, as it cannot be converted to other purposes.

MAINE 'BAD MAN' IS KILLED BY CELL MATE

Mapes, Who Held Police at Bay With Gun, Attacked by Another Desperado

Alfred, Me., March 5.—Robert L. Mapes of Saco, who kept his aged father and mother prisoner in their home and officers of the law at bay for thirty hours with a shotgun last January, was killed today in the jail here by his cellmate, Carl Goodwin. Mapes was beaten to death with a flatiron.

Goodwin, who is only nineteen, comes from Lebanon, N. H. He was committed to the jail last week, charged with shooting and arson. He is alleged to have set five fires in Lebanon, Berwick and Rochester, and to have fired five shots at officers who arrested him, while he was being taken to jail in a sleigh. Two of the bullets were stopped by thick notebooks in the pocket of Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Coffin, and one went through the coat of Constable Fred A. Spencer of Berwick.

Mapes was thirty-seven and a printer. Following the episode in which he kept his household in a state of siege, he was examined for his sanity and was declared sane. At the time it was reported that his father, Erastus L. Mapes, aged sixty-five, was dying. The son, it was said, was crazed with fear at a threat made by his brother Henry that Robert was insane and would be committed to an institution.

Mapes armed himself with a gun and kept everyone away from the house, including the physician summoned to care for his father.

Mapes was committed to jail here about the time that Henry H. Hall, the Baptist lay preacher recently acquitted of wife murder, was removed to Saco for trial.

The murder is believed to have taken place about 7 a. m. The adjoining cell was occupied by John Storah of Biddeford, convicted of wife-murder two years ago and awaiting re-trial on an appeal. Storah declared that he heard no sound, and it is believed that Mapes was sleeping when attacked.

Both Mapes and Goodwin have been regarded as desperate characters.

Goodwin, when confronted with a murder charge, admitted that he had killed Mapes. He said Mapes had threatened to kill him.

Discovery of the deed came about when Goodwin left his cell in the course of regular morning duties and refused to re-enter it. Keeper Lassel A. Garvin insisted on Goodwin's re-entering and went into the cell with him. Mapes was not dead. He was lying on his back, breathing faintly. He died soon after.

DECORATE STAY-AT-HOMES IN PREFERENCE TO EDWARDS

26TH'S FORMER LEADER WON PRAISE OF THE FRENCH

The military and executive ability of General Edwards have been emphasized again and again in the World War history of the 26th.

His qualities as a leader of fighting men, his love for and care of his men have been told repeatedly in letters written home by the men in his big command and by the interviews secured from those men who have so far returned home from overseas.

9,000 MEN IN 26TH CITED.

Neither the United States nor France has conferred any decoration yet upon the commander who was at the head of the 26th through the brunt of its terrific war experience in France.

The valorous deeds of the 26th and its officers and men are attested by the large number of citations and decorations awarded them.

Fully seven thousand officers and men of the division have been cited for bravery.

More than 500 have been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal or the French de Guerre.

One entire unit of the 26th—the 104th Infantry—was cited by the French Government.

The 26th Division leads all National Guard Divisions in the number of decorations awarded its personnel. In this respect it is exceeded by only three divisions in the entire American fighting forces and those three are Regular Army divisions.

YET THE MAN WHO COMMANDED THIS REMARKABLE DIVISION SO LONG AND SO ABLY HAS YET TO BE DECORATED.

The list of general officers who have been decorated by the War Department to date in the World War fails to contain the names of more than a score of officers whose personal ability and war record—as the public has followed their career—would seem to entitle them to special recognition.

GENERAL IS OVERLOOKED.

The omission of General Edwards' name from the medal list so far is naturally the thing that interests Boston and New England keenly.

The prospective return of the 26th next month is bringing the matter more and more to general attention.

The question is asked:

"When the Yankee Division arrives home, laden heavily with honors, what will the officers and men think when they realize that their beloved former-commander has no Distinguished Service Medal, such as many other officers have received?"

The question is also probable: "Who has received this honor that has been withheld from General Edwards?"

Comparisons may be made in the minds of the returning soldiers. The Distinguished Service Medal has already been awarded six generals, 46 major-generals and 30 brigadier-generals. Most of these have never been overseas. Some of them have never seen a battle. None of them, it may be asserted, has ever been placed in exactly the same position as General Edwards.

ENGAGED IN GREAT BATTLES.

Anyone who went through the battles along the Chemin-des-Dames, at Chateau Thierry, the attack on the St. Mihiel salient, at Verdun and in the fearful fighting up through the Argonne can tell things about the achievements, the responsibility and the military activities of General Edwards.

Those who met him from day to day, when he was called upon to organize the 26th Division, can well recall General Edwards' burning desire to head this division. When the order came naming him to this command he was supremely happy.

His division had a longer service at the front than any other. Its casualty roll shows its heavy losses.

Through the awful days on the Chemin-des-Dames, at Toul, in the Second Battle of the Marne, at Thiercon-Thierry, at St. Mihiel, along the Meuse and in the Argonne, General Edwards was in closest touch with his men.

EXPOSED SELF UNDER FIRE.

At Marchille he went out personally to have first-hand observation of their manoeuvres. He was "always around," as his men expressed it. He exposed himself to danger so often that Major John Hyatt and Captain "Nat" Simpkins (now dead) had to impress upon him the necessity of not running undue risk of the enemy's fire.

When he was withdrawn from the command of the 26th last October his men broke down and cried at the thought of losing their beloved commander.

The forty-six days' association of the 26th Division with the 11th French Army Corps at the Chemin-des-Dames brought out anew General Edwards' adaptability to new relations and his ability to bring these relations into effective administration. He called this French corps the godfather of the 26th. General Huy, commander of the 11th Corps, said of this relation:

"The 11th Corps feels proud of the marked honor, being sure that, wherever he may be sent, the golden shall do credit to the godfather."

The 11th recalls the specific statement of General Passage in general orders, thus:

"Under the distinguished command of their chief, General Edwards, the high-spirited soldiers of the Yankee Division have taught the enemy some bitter lessons at Bois Brule, at Seicheprey, at Xivray-Marvoisin; they have taught him to realize the staunch vigor of the sons of the great republic fighting for the world's freedom. My heartiest good wishes will accompany the Yankee Division always in future combats."

The list of generals who have received the Distinguished Service Medal contains the name of one man who was recommended for the medal upon the very grounds that won praise for General Edwards from General Passage.

PRAISED BY FRENCH GENERAL.

General Dougeite, commander of the Fifth Army Corps, said:

"The operations carried out by the 26th Division from July 18 to July 26 demonstrated the fine soldierly qualities of this unit and of its leader, General Edwards."

General Dougeite added:

"Co-operating in the attack north of Marne, the 26th fought brilliantly on the line, Torcy-Belleau, at Monthiers, Epieds and Trugny, in the forest of Fere, advancing more than fifteen kilometers in depth, in spite of the desperate resistance of the enemy.

"I take great pleasure in communicating to General Edwards and his valiant division this expression of my great esteem together with my heartiest congratulations for the manner in which they have served the common cause. I could not have done better in a similar occasion with my best troops."

COMMENDED BY WRITERS.

To the specific praise by these two great French commanders is added the high commendation by several military writers in two leading English magazines.

The confidence of his men and their love for General Edwards is summed up in the words chalked on some of the troop trains in France. "God bless General Edwards."

Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., and other men who have been in position to observe the morale of the American soldiers overseas, have made particular mention of the way General Edwards handled the men under him and the high morale of the 26th.

More than twenty other major-generals and brigadier-generals, who have yet to receive military decorations, are in the public mind, commanders whose records seem to entitle them to the Distinguished Service Medal.

These officers and their merits, as esteemed by the public, include the following:

MAJOR-GENERAL CHARLES J. BAILEY—Commanded the 81st Division and showed merit all through the war.

MAJOR-GENERAL OMAR BUNDY—Commanding 2d Division, later with Sixth Army Corps. The man who said: "Americans cannot retreat."

MAJOR-GENERAL EDWIN F. GLENN—Commanding 85th Division and regarded as very capable officer.

MAJOR-GENERAL WILLIAM L. KENLEY—Head of the Air Service, modest but very efficient.

MAJOR-GENERAL ROBERT L. HOWZE: Cavalry expert, former chief of staff, Northeastern Department, did efficient work in France.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOSEPH B. KUHN: Commanded 78th Division, had charge of the War College, observer in Manchuria and Germany. Noted for his well-balanced mind and his excellent work as an advisor during the war.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN F. MORRISON: Able officer, formerly in charge at Leavenworth School.

MAJOR-GENERAL WILLIAM C. CROZIER: Long in charge of Ordnance Department, authority on Hague Peace Conference, exercised great efficiency and discretion in handling detail work of the Northeastern Department during the war. Student of and commentator upon Second Battle of the Marne.

MAJOR-GENERAL WILLIAM R. SMITH: Commanding 35th Division. Had to see his division go to strengthen other units. Regarded as a splendid artillery officer.

MAJOR-GENERAL PETER E. TRAUB—Commanding 33th Division. Unusually well informed officer, student of military tactics, formerly of Northeastern Department.

MAJOR - GENERAL ERASMUS WEAVER—Chief of artillery, member of War Council, artillery expert.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL MALVERN-HILL BARNUM—Former chief of staff, Southern Division; assigned to 31st Division.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL HENRY P. BIRMINGHAM — Skilled surgeon, whose work in France was notable.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL JOSEPH C. CASTNER: Infantry officer whose work is regarded as deserving of recognition.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL ALBERTUS W. CATLIN: Efficient work in France. He is the man who said: "With the help of God and a few marines I can do wonders."

BRIGADIER-GENERAL CHARLES H. COLE: Our own "Charlie Cole," commanding 53d Brigade of the 26th Division. Summed up as an officer who gets results."

BRIGADIER-GENERAL WILLIAM C. DAVIS: Expert coast artillery officer.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL TRACY C. DICKSON: The wise administrator at Watertown Arsenal, has reduced executive work to a science.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL EVAN M. JOHNSON—Commanded 77th Division, badly wounded in fighting.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL GEORGE H. SHELTON—In many battles in France, strategist of high order, who has fought his way up to distinction.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL JOHN W. RUCKMAN—Gave his time and thought during the war to better preparation for defense of Boston Harbor and perfected elaborate and skilful details for protection of New England coast from invasion by sea.

HAIR COMING OUT!

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of Danderine druff, get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish, or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

THE DEAF HEAR

Mrs. Clara Wood, 467 Hyde Park avenue, Hyde Park, told the writer how her hearing was restored and head noises stopped by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians. She said: "I had been practically stone deaf in my left ear for two years and had head noises that resembled the sounds made by a steam engine. My husband told me of a Mr. Leighton, a fellow workman, whose hearing had been almost miraculously restored by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, and suggested that I try them. I did so, with the result that my hearing has been restored and the noises banished."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description: CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE, BIRTH MARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

Begin To Purify Your Winter-Blood

Grandmother's Old-Fashioned Sulphur and Molasses Did It.

But Not So Well As This Sulpherb Tablet—Sugar Coated.

Through the Winter the blood accumulates poisons because you do not perspire enough, because you do not live in the open air, and because you eat more meat, much of it rather rich foods. Every spring we feel sluggish, constipated, liver and kidney ills beset us, colds and coughs develop, pimples, boils and carbuncles, all evidence of impure, thick, sluggish blood.

Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets) are composed of extracts of roots and herbs, combined with sulphur and cream of tartar—and no better physic, blood-tonic and blood-cleanser has ever been developed. Every spring thousands who already know their value take them to purify the system of Winter Poisons. Now is the time to begin, so you won't be bothered by serious ailments when Spring and Summer come. Sold by all druggists 60c per sealed tube with full directions.—Advertisement.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins that bleed. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. Wash the way is washed off the next morning. Only skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No harm or inconvenience accompany this simple treatment.

For deep wrinkles or crowsfeet, a solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce dissolved in a half pint of witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.—Advertisement.

WILSON SAILS TO COMPLETE PEACE TASK

President Confident of Early Results of Conference; Thousands Bid Him Godspeed

The President expressed the belief that the work of the Peace Conference would be completed sooner than he thought possible immediately after his departure from Paris. The program of the conference has been advanced much more rapidly than he previously thought possible.

SALUTE AS SHIP SAILS.

From the deck President and Mrs. Wilson waved from the bridge, where they smilingly acknowledged the cheers and shouts from the people on the dock. As the liner drew out the presidential salute of twenty-one guns was fired and the colors were broken out.

President Wilson arose at 7:30 and breakfasted with Mrs. Wilson, after which both went upon the deck of the liner to watch the great crowd upon the people gathered to see the executive off.

The President and Mrs. Wilson had driven direct from the Metropolitan Opera House to the pier after the President had delivered his memorable speech on the League of Nations last night.

In the President's own words, "I won't come back till it's over, over there," spoken at the beginning of his address last night might be accepted as his parting message to his fellow citizens on the George Washington.

The weather was beautiful. It was a typical Spring day—warm, with bright sunshine.

Just before the departure of the George Washington the President sent a telegram of sympathy to William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, over the death of his son-in-law, Ferdinand De Morenschildt. Mrs. De Morenschildt is a daughter of the former Secretary of the Treasury.

LESS NOISE THAN ON FIRST.

Because of the harbor strike the passage of the George Washington down the bay was less noisy than on the previous presidential departure in December.

On the first trip the tugboats blew noisy blasts from their whistles, but most of the tugs were tied up today.

Besides the President and Mrs. Wilson, others in the official party were:

Miss Benham, secretary to Mrs. Wilson; Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson, physician to the White House and aide to the President; former Attorney-General Thomas W. Watt Gregory; Prentiss Gray of the food administration; Charles M. Swemm and Charles C. Wagner, White House stenographers; Gilbert F. Close, Irwin Hoover, chief White House usher; George Long, in charge of the baggage; nine secret service men and servants.

The marine guard of sixty-eight men that made up the previous trip accompanied the President.

PIER IS GUARDED.

A heavy guard was thrown about pier No. 4, in Hoboken, from which the George Washington sailed.

All entrances to the quay were watched all night long by men of the port of debarkation guard under command of Major H. C. Craig.

An hour before the George Washington began to warp out into midstream the transport Powhatan eased her way into Pier No. 2, nearby, meanwhile dipping her flag to the President's emblem, which fluttered at the masthead of the George Washington.

No bands greeted the soldiers on the Powhatan. They were not permitted to play for fear they would disturb the President and his party.

PLAYS "OVER THERE" AGAIN.

President and Mrs. Wilson occupied the same suites on the ship they had on the previous voyage. Their apartments were filled with flowers that had been sent by friends and admirers.

The President wore an overcoat and a cap and smiled happily and removed the cap as he greeted the people from the ship's bridge.

Mrs. Wilson wore a black dress and a small dark hat with a dash of red in it.

The pier was decked with all of the flags of the allies. Two bands played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Over There" as the great ship plowed slowly into midstream.

At twelve minutes after 8 an order-ly dashed down the gangway of the George Washington under instructions to get a copy of all of the New York morning papers for the President. He rushed back on board just a few minutes before the lines were cast off under the personal direction of Captain William Bernhard.

ESCORTED BY WARSHIPS.

As the President and Mrs. Wilson climbed the ladder from "B" deck to the bridge it was remarked that both appeared rather pale, as though tired out from the strenuous events of the past few days, but both appeared supremely happy.

The crew of the George Washington and the marines in their dress uniforms lined the deck rail in a double line as the ship began its long journey.

The great liner also received a new coat of paint as she started down the Hudson river, towards the open bay, escorted by the great battleship Montana and a group of six grim, gray destroyers.

The few harbor craft tied up by the strike opened up with their sirens in one mighty blast of farewell.

Factories on shore took up the din and the people lining the shore also cheered to the limit.

As the George Washington passed the Statue of Liberty, she met the transport Sierra coming in with returning troops on board. The President and Mrs. Wilson waved to the Sierra's passengers as they passed, dipped her flag and the George Washington replied. The cry, "There's the President's ship," rang over the Sierras decks and soon the rail was lined by doughboys, who waved their hats and cheered lustily.

NEW WIRELESS INSTALLED.

The suites occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be watched day and night by a picked crew all the way over.

Among the improvements made in the overhauling of the George Washington was the installation of a new wireless apparatus which will enable the President to keep in constant touch with land all the way to France. The old wireless on the George Washington had a radius of only 300 miles.

Wilson Reassures Peace Delegates That People of U. S. Are for League

By ROBERT J. PREW,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 5.—All of the peace delegations whose eyes have been turned toward America since President Wilson arrived at Boston were profoundly relieved when they heard that the President had cabled to the American delegation here expressing the confident opinion that an overwhelming majority of the American people are in favor of the League of Nations covenant.

The prominence given on this side of the Atlantic to the criticism by President Wilson's political opponents in the United States Senate had caused a nervous feeling through allied Europe.

All fears were removed, however, by the message of America's Chief Executive and the conference is now able to go ahead with its main job of fixing the terms for Germany unroubled by fears for the fate of the League of Nations idea.

It is understood that the delegations now believe that preliminary peace terms will be handed to the Germans at Versailles not later than March 20.

The council is now ready to take up the claims of King Nicholas of Montenegro, who is fighting the idea of having his country incorporated within Jugo-Slavia.

The Belgians affairs commission has declared in favor of abrogating the treaty of 1839, thus eliminating Belgian neutrality and permitting the opening of territorial problems involving Belgium and Holland.

MILLIKEN ENDORSED AS NEXT VICE-PRESIDENT

Augusta, Me., March 5.—A Republican legislative caucus endorsed the candidacy of Governor Carl E. Milliken as the nominee for Vice-President at the next Republican national convention and a citizens' caucus, composed of Republicans from various sections of the State, endorsed his candidacy. A telegram informing him of the action was sent to Governor Milliken at Washington.

Fish on sale in American stores today:

Haddock.
Cod, steak and market.
Boston bluefish.
Finnan haddie.
Whiting.
Herring.
Smelts.
Flounders.

Fish prices in the Boston American cost stores—five cents per pound.

Prices for the same thing in communities not yet served by these stores—anywhere from nine to thirty-two cents.

This striking comparison, made from figures obtained today and given in detail here, powerfully illustrates what is being accomplished by the fish stores established by this newspaper.

Steak cod, which is sold for five cents at the American stores, brings the most disproportionate prices when sold over the counters of private enterprises, and some dealers exact as high as thirty-two cents a pound for it. Market cod retails for from six to eighteen cents a pound, indicating the scientific way in which the dealers as a whole are figuring their "percentage."

In not a single instance do the private enterprises duplicate the prices of the Boston American stores, but to the contrary often double and triple those prices. The nearest approach to Boston American prices is in the case of market cod, which one Roxbury dealer is selling for only a cent more than the American. It is worthy of note that there is a Boston American store in competition with the private dealers of Roxbury.

Today's prices in some of Boston's suburbs are:

AMERICAN'S FISH STORES DRAW BIG CROWDS

Supply Replenished as Fast as Stores Are Sold Out

counters were again heaped high with Boston's best food bargain.

STORES ARE CROWDED.

Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, just added to the heavy sales of the American's stores. When the new stores opened in Charlestown, East Boston, Everett and Lynn—the only answer was—CROWDS.

Crowds waited for the doors to open. Long before attendants were ready to handle the crowds hundreds thronged the entrances with eagerness to be first to get in their orders. You would have thought it was the day before Christmas and everybody had gone shopping mad.

But the American fish store men were happy. They soon provided fish enough to supply the first rush. They worked like beavers, inspired by the thought that the public was catching on to the American idea that fish can be sold at more reasonable rates than at present in Boston and still allow a fair margin of profit to the retailer.

Even the fish themselves are rushing to aid the American's fish campaign. One million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds of them came in the Fish Pier today in twenty-one schooners and two steamers.

Result: Lowest wholesale prices in five years.

Meanwhile at the American store things are humming. Nothing succeeds like success.

Here are the new Boston American Fish Stores—your stores—opened that you might get fish at five cents a pound:

Lynn—No. 424 Washington street.
Charlestown—No. 97 Main street.
Everett—No. 142 School street; use of store given by Henry A. Le Hane.
East Boston—Ferguson's Grocery, Paris and Meridian streets, use of store given by William Ferguson.

NINE STORES NOW OPEN.

This makes nine stores opened by the American in six days to supply the public of Boston with fish at cost.

How the public is responding to the efforts of Alden A. Mills, the fish expert, and the American to give them food at cost, can be seen from the fact that yesterday the five Boston American stores then opened sold out again and again during the day.

It was physically impossible to keep the stores properly stocked to handle the vast crowds which thronged them from early morning until closing time. Truck load after truck load of fish was hurried to each store only to find that its supply had been exhausted shortly before. Employes of the stores worked so hard that in one of them one of the employes collapsed from sheer exhaustion. Through tireless labor, however, new stocks were secured again and again, until every customer was provided.

While continuing plans to open stores in Lawrence and Lowell, and if possible Haverhill and Nashua, N. H., this week.

It has been settled that six cents a pound, one cent a pound more than in Metropolitan Boston, will be the price of the fish in places further than ten miles from the city. This is necessary to cover the expense of transportation.

Many customers visiting Boston American stores do not seem to understand that these stores will be kept open every week day and Saturday nights to provide the public with fish at cost. The stores are not to be closed tomorrow or next day. They will be open every day, giving the public the opportunity to utilize fish the way it should be utilized and eat it once a day.

As quickly as the many problems constantly arising in connection with the establishment in this hurried fashion of new stores can be solved, Boston American stores will be opened in Worcester, Providence, Pawtucket, Brockton and a score of other places. Many other locations to serve the people of Metropolitan Boston are also being considered.

Watch the American for the opening of a store near your home.

And meantime patronize the nearest Boston American store! Make every day a fish day!

Clocks Must Advance an Hour Sunday, March 30

Washington, March 5.—Clocks must be advanced one hour on the last Sunday in March, to conform to the requirements of the daylight saving law, which remains in effect notwithstanding the efforts of agricultural interests to have it repealed.

The failure of Congress to repeal the law in response to the demand of farmers was due to the filibuster against the agricultural bill in the closing hours of the session. The proposition to repeal had been made a rider to the agricultural bill.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels, the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, sluggishness; others, who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost but very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a progressed citizen on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

TELLS HOW HE GOT RID OF HIS CORNS

Well-Known Man Relates Remarkable Experience

"By George! I never saw anything like the effect of that new treatment Ice-Mint, for removing corns and bringing quick relief to tired, swollen, aching, burning feet. It acted like a miracle in my case," said a well-known man yesterday, in speaking of this discovery which has caused such a big stir among Peg Specialists. "I had carried a corn for years that simply took all the joy out of life. I tried plasters, salves, other compounds but all of the other 'dope' that is supposed to do the trick, but the pesky thing would simply not leave me. It began to look as if there was both-ing to get that would kill my corn, and I began to read about the possibilities of relief to foot sufferers from the use of Ice-Mint. I decided to try it for myself and before I hardly realized it my corn came out—root and all—and without pain or soreness. Believe me, it seems mighty good not to be afraid some one is going to hit my sore corn—and the relief—well, that just seems like Paradise."

Ice-Mint is a pure, snow-white, creamy preparation made from a genuine Japanese product and is highly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who stand on their feet all day. It draws the inflammation out of swollen, tired or burning feet and loosens hard or soft corns so they can easily be lifted out with the fingers—root and all, besides it inserts such a delightful, cooling, soothing sensation that you will just sigh with relief. It is selling like "Hot Cakes" here. Try it. Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired, aching feet the treat of their lives.

There is nothing better, or nothing just as good.

U.S. ALLOWANCES TO FAMILIES EXEMPT

Salaries Paid by Employers While Men Were in Service Also Escape Tax

Salaries paid by patriotic employers to employes temporarily in the government service are exempt from the Federal Income Tax, and may be deducted from the gross income from business as a part of "necessary business expenses," according to a ruling made public today by the Soldiers' Service Bureau in Washington.

Family allowances paid by the government since June 24, 1918, to dependents of men in the service are likewise exempt from income tax.

Special allowances for travel and subsistence to soldiers and sailors are to be classed as compensation on which no return need be made, unless the aggregate amount of such allowances plus salary exceeds $1,000.

A statement from the Soldiers' Service Bureau contains the following:

"Special allowances for travel and subsistence are classed as compensation on which men in the military or naval service are not required to make income returns or pay taxes, providing the total does not exceed $5,000 for 1918.

"In explaining this ruling the internal revenue bureau specified the following items to be regarded as compensation to be exempted: Living quarters, heat and light allowances, clothing allowances, commutation of rations, marksmanship or extra duty pay, traveling pay to discharged men, mileage allowances and allowances in lieu of subsistence while travelling under orders.

"Family allowances paid by the government since June 24, 1918, to dependents of men in military or naval service also are exempt from income taxes. Employers who paid salaries to employes temporarily in government service may deduct these payments in making out tax returns, regarding them as business expenses. This applies to sums paid soldiers or sailors and men serving the government at 'a dollar a year.'"

The time for filing federal income tax returns expires Saturday, March 15. All persons who served in the military or naval forces of the United States and whose income from that source totalled under $5,500 are exempt from filing a return.

Married persons whose income during the calendar year 1918 was more than $2,000, and single persons whose 1918 income totalled more than $1,000 must file a return. Twenty-five per cent. of the 1918 federal income tax must accompany the return on or before March 15.

CAPTAIN WILL RETURN WITH FRENCH BRIDE

Leominster, March 5.—When Captain Hermon F. Safford, 60th Coast Artillery, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Safford, returns to Leominster he will bring a bride from France. Word has been received that the captain has become the husband of Mademoiselle Odette Riviere, a prominent society girl of Bordeaux and an accomplished musician. The wedding was a big event in army circles in the old French city. Captain Safford was graduated from the Leominster High in 1912 and from Worcester Tech in 1912.

HOOVER ASKED TO RUSH FOOD TO CZECH PEOPLE

Paris, March 5.—Herbert Hoover of the food relief commission was today consulted by the Council of Ten regarding the best means of rushing food supplies to Czecho-Slovakia. The conference was informed that conditions are terrible, and unless immediate relief arrives there is great danger that the rapidly growing Bolshevist element will overturn the government.

BARS ARE LET DOWN ON RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

Qualifying examinations will no longer be required, and elections will be based on collegiate or university records, in the resumed election of Rhodes scholars in the United States, according to the announcement made by Professor Frank Aydelotte of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the American secretary to the Rhodes trustees.

CHICAGO POLICE SEEK BOLSHEVIKI BOMB

Chicago, March 5.—Chicago police and Federal authorities are combing the city for four bombs thought to be in the possession of Bolshevik leaders. Half a hundred suspects, all "Reds," with known records, are in jail, and according to police officials are being rounded up in other cities.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

William H. Hendrickson of Milton has been sued for $10,000 by Richmond W. Woodward of Marlboro who alleges that he was struck by the defendant's automobile and injured.

MRS. McCLURE WAS 'FRAMED,' SAYS 'MAN IN THE CASE'

Mrs. Frances McClure, defendant in suit for divorce by her husband, Henry H. McClure, New York publisher.

New York, March 5.—A maid in the employ of Henry H. McClure testified before Justice Ford and a jury that she had served breakfast on many occasions to Mrs. Frances L. McClure and to Ngil R. White in Mrs. McClure's boudoir.

McClure, wealthy publisher, is suing his wife for divorce, naming White. The latter is interested in the management of a well known restaurant in this city. He is a fellow clubman of McClure. Both he and Mrs. McClure, in explaining why he was in her room the morning it was raided by witnesses seeking divorce evidence, said he was trying to find smelling salts to cure her headache.

"It's a frame-up," said White emphatically at the conclusion of his testimony in favor of Mrs. McClure. The latter, a stylishly dressed, beautiful young woman, nodded in approval.

"Didn't you use the words, 'I feel like a cur,' when caught?" White was asked.

"I did not. I felt that I had been grievously wronged. I was invited by Mr. McClure the night before to come to his house to play cards. I stayed overnight at his invitation—and then to have this happen!"

CHARGES PERJURY.

"You think the testimony against you is perjured?"

"Yes, I do. I think it is an attempt to get money out of me, and freedom for Mrs. McClure's husband."

White explained that he sat up late with McClure playing cards in the McClure apartment and slept in the same room with McClure that night. McClure lent his pajamas, as on previous occasions. The witness added:

"In the morning I awoke about 10 o'clock. Mr. McClure had left the room. I went to the door of Mrs. McClure's room, as was customary when I stayed overnight. I knocked to let her know I was rising. She called me to come in—said she had a bad headache and asked me to open her window and get her cologne headache bottle."

Here Mrs. McClure took up the thread of the story:

"I was suffering from a severe headache. When Mr. White rapped at my door I pressed the button to summon my maid. She did not respond. I asked Mr. White to step in and hand me my bottle of cologne."

Mrs. McClure looked toward the jury and remarked that it was not the first time White had been in her room. Once her husband sent White, wearing pajamas, into her room to give her a magazine. It was McClure's custom, when White was a guest over night, to go to business early in the morning and leave White or Mrs. McClure were ready to breakfast, she told the jury.

THREATENED, SHE SAYS.

Mrs. McClure said that her husband, a detective and McClure's lawyer burst into her bedroom just as White was searching for the cologne bottle. She continued:

"The detective created me roughly. When I attempted to dress and go to a telephone the detective told me if I didn't get out of the house he would have me arrested."

Mrs. McClure summoned Stephen C. Baldwin, a well-known attorney, as one of her witnesses.

Baldwin testified that he and his wife were friends of the McClures and had visited them in their home. On one occasion, in 1916, he said, Mr. and Mrs. McClure came to talk with him concerning their marital affairs. He testified Mrs. McClure said her husband had confessed an "affair" with a maid in their home during her absence.

On cross-examination Baldwin was shown several photographs of himself with Mrs. McClure. He was asked if his relations with her were purely platonic. Mrs. McClure's lawyer said the question was insulting.

Baldwin answered that he was merely a friend of Mrs. McClure, and had posed at Montauk Point for the pictures exhibited to the jury. He was there on a fishing trip from his farm at Shelter Island.

Mr. McClure promptly denied he ever had confessed any love affair with the maid. He admitted he had kissed the girl. He then called his present housekeeper, Gertrude Petersen, as a witness. Through smiles and tears she told of carrying a breakfast tray to Mrs. McClure and White in the former's boudoir.

NEW INSURANCE OFFERED WAR HEROES

War Risk Bureau Can Transfer Policies to Regular Line Companies

Six regular insurance policies are being offered discharged service men by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, into any of which the war-time insurance carried by men in the service may be converted within the next five years.

The policies are ordinary life, 20-payment life, 20-payment life, 20-year endowment, 30-year endowment, and endowment maturing at the age of 62.

The insurance will be carried by the government at rates considerably lower than regular life insurance. On an ordinary $1,000 life insurance policy, the rates will be as follows: For a man 20 years old, $15.38 annually; a man 25, $15.24, and a man 30, $17.36.

The proceeds of all policies are non-taxable, and insurance is incontestable from the date of issue. All policies are payable in monthly installments except paid-up policies, payable in a lump sum on death and endowment policies, payable on maturity. Premiums may be paid quarterly, half yearly or annually.

FASHION-PLATE BANDIT NOW ON THE JOB

Something new in holdups—the fashion-plate bandit.

He is operating in the Cambridge-Somerville district, and police of both cities are looking for him. Dressed in the height of fashion, with a light overcoat, one of the new brown Spring crush hats, gray suede gloves—and carrying a gun—he held up Allen Brown on the Beacon street bridge and "lifted" all Mr. Brown's possessions except his clothes.

The bridge connects Somerville and Cambridge. Brown, who lives at No. 4 Beach street, North Cambridge, was on his way home about midnight. Brown gave up a diamond ring valued at $125, a signet ring valued at $15, a gold watch and $2.50 in cash.

The bandit was excessively polite, and handled his victim literally with gloves—gray suede gloves. Two friends aided in the affing apparently ready to give aid if needed.

The polite bandit is described as about twenty-two, five feet six, and dark-complexioned.

LIGHTING BILLS GIVE PUBLIC SQUARE DEAL

Measures Before Lighting Board Grant Beneficial Powers to State Commission

"Three bills of vital importance to every user of gas were heard today at the State House before the Committee on Public Lighting. They are recommended by the Gas and Electric Light Commission, and are essential to the proper conduct of gas and electric light business from the public viewpoint.

It is urged that all interested in the matter attend the session and hear the arguments on the proposed legislation.

MAY LESSEN DIVIDENDS.

The first bill, relating to the checking of depletion of resources of gas, electric and water companies, puts into the hands of the board a beneficial power. If the Gas and Electric Commission under this act finds a company paying too large dividends or otherwise using a surplus which could lessen the expense to the public purse, it can order these changes of public benefit.

The second bill relates to street lighting contracts. This act gives supervision to the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners to street lighting contracts, such as rates, charges and length of contract.

The third bill refers to a provision for depreciation by water, gas and electric companies.

MUST SET ASIDE EARNINGS.

It provides that these companies shall set aside, out of earnings, such allowance for depreciation of their respective properties and for such periods as the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners may determine.

All moneys required to be set aside out of earnings for depreciation shall be used solely for renewals other than ordinary repairs, extensions, reconstruction, enlargements and additions to plant. Under this act the board will also have the power to use such a fund as it may deem advisable.

WAKEFIELD MILL AND FISH STORE ROBBED

Wakefield, March 5.—Two thefts within the past twenty-four hours have been reported to the Wakefield police. The Middlesex Knitting Mills, in the Taylor block, Wakefield square, was the first place visited, and a large quantity of sweaters stolen. Early today the fish market of George W. Butterfield was visited and $8 taken from the cash drawer, while the proprietor was waiting upon customers.

TWO BOYS HELD FOR JAMAICA PLAIN FIRE

Two boys were arrested today, charged with setting a fire which did $1,000 damage at No. 8 Lamartine place, Jamaica Plain. The boys are William P. McManus, twelve, of No. 344 Amory street, and James P. Hardcastle, eleven, of No. 186 Amory street. The fire started in a one-story wooden barn and spread to the two-and-one-half-story wooden dwelling on the same lot. The buildings are owned and occupied by William J. Keefe.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS STRIKE AT JOLIET, ILL.

Joliet, Ill., March 5.—Efforts are being made today to settle a strike of 1,500 high school students who left their classes yesterday because a basketball team had been suspended for missing sessions. The students paraded the streets crying, "We want our team back; no team, no school."

Should Massachusetts pay the mother for each child born?

Should Motherhood be insured by the State? In England it is done and it must be recognized here. The progress of society and the wastage of war demand it. Is it possible that such a law will be passed? Is there a legal as well as a moral basis for it? What form will the payment take?

This vital problem is discussed with startling illumination by W. L. George in March Good Housekeeping. It crystallizes one of the most important issues in human life.

This is but one of the features appearing in March. Read as well "The Passing of the Kings" by Frances Hodgson Burnett. She tells brilliantly and intimately of the fluttering of flags and the gaiety of trumpets which have marked the Coronation of kings, and the junk-heap of brittle crowns and sceptres which has followed them. The author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" gives a vivid picture of the royal persons she has seen.

In the same number is James Oliver Curwood's tale of the North-West, "The River's End," and Ida A. R. Wylie's very charming story "Tinker—Tailor." Among the additional contributors are Kathleen Norris, Ruth Sawyer, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and Arthur Somers Roche. IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood-pure, thereby avoiding serious kidneys complications.—Advertisement.

U. S. TROOPS IN RUSSIA EAGER TO RETURN

Men Fighting Amid Snow and Mud—Believe Russians Can Care for Themselves

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER,
(Universal Service Staff Correspondent.)

London, March 5.—Direct from the snow swept No Man's Land on the Archangel front where American troops are battling the Bolsheviki, comes a first-hand report that the American expedition will soon be withdrawn from Russia.

Four Y. M. C. A. workers just arrived in London from Archangel say the doughboys are dancing with glee at the persistent report, which is not denied by American officers, that they will soon start for home.

Lending further color to this is the remark dropped by General Bliss in Paris last week to the effect that it may not be long before American troops are brought home from Russia.

SOLDIERS DISLIKE CAMPAIGN.

The four Y. M. C. A. workers are C. L. Hedden of Newark, N. J.; N. W. Hess of Ashland, Pa.; Thomas Woody of New York and K. Birkham of Baltimore.

They say the American soldiers' general attitude is summed up in this doughboys' original "ditty":

"It's the land of the infernal odor,
The land of the national smell;
The average American soldier
Would rather be quartered in hell.
It's back to the States for yours truly
I'm not wishing any one ill;
But Russia's no place to handle her own boat.
And truly, I reckon it will."

While some American soldiers in Russia believe they will be homeward bound within a few months, general opinion is that they will start for America May 1 or in June, at the latest, owing to the necessity of waiting until the ice breaks up.

"The fighting in Russia is absolutely unlike anything on the west front. It is generally a 'retreating advance' by both sides on a large scale.

Hedden, laughingly, told of an American victory at Eccleistad, on the Vaga River, where a small American detachment was pushed back six miles, then stiffened and chased the Reds eighteen miles, gaining a victory by the sheer force of marathon abilities.

SUFFER FROM COLD AND MUD.

"The Bolsheviki, like the Germans," said Hedden, "do not fight unless they are many of them. They tried often to fraternize with the Americans, but met only with rebuff and the point of the bayonet."

The Americans are the best fed, clothed and housed of all the allied contingents in Russia, Hedden continued. "But they suffer from the chilling cold and snow and the wet and muddy trenches."

Sweeping Reforms for Women Urged in Labor Program

London, March 5.—Sweeping international labor reforms, especially as regards women and children, are contained in the British draft understood to have been adopted, "with very minor alterations," by the peace conference commission on international labor legislation. Some of the main proposals are:

Altogether before and after childbirth under fifteen in industrial occupations; six-hour day for children between fifteen and eighteen; no women to be employed at night; women shall not be allowed to work for four weeks altogether before and after child birth; maternity insurance in all countries providing compensation at least equal to sickness insurance benefit; women shall receive same pay as men for the same job; unemployment insurance in every country.

TWO "BILLS" IN BOSTON AT SAME TIME

Popular Comedians Hodge and Collier Open Next Week Against Each Other

The two Bills, William Hodge and William Collier, will both be in Boston next week and competing with each other from theatres almost across the street.

America's two most popular comedians. Quite an odd coincidence, arrive and open against each other. Collier will be at the Wilbur in "Nothing but Lies." This farce comedy is said to be exceedingly laughable and a worthy successor of "Nothing but the Truth," in which Collier played at the Plymouth for many weeks last season.

William Hodge returns in his success of last season, "A Cure for Curables," a play written by himself and affording him unusual opportunities for fun making. This play was originally given at the Majestic Theatre here for many weeks. New York, Chicago and other big cities have endorsed it, and it looks good to us.

LEXINGTON FINANCE BOARD FAVORS $270,538.47 BUDGET

Lexington, March 5.—The report of the finance committee for the annual town meeting next Monday evening has been issued. The committee recommends a total of $270,538.47 in appropriations. If the amounts are adopted the tax rate for 1919 will be approximately $26 on each $1,000, an increase of $1 over last year's rate.

The committee recommends financing a new school building by loans.

MAPLE SUGAR SEASON HAS AN EARLY START

Manchester, N. H., March 5.—Maple sugar making in Northern New England is having an unusually early start this year. Many tapped their trees this week and it is predicted that new maple sugar and syrup will be in the stores within a few days. Sugar orchards are not usually tapped until the latter part of March.

INJURED NORTH ADAMS CORPORAL COMING HOME

North Adams, March 5.—Corporal William H. Walker who, as a member of an engineering unit was seriously injured in a railroad accident in France last December, has arrived in New York, according to a telegram sent by the Salvation Army to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Walker of Hoosac street. Corporal Walker is now at Embarkation Hospital No. 2 in New York and expects to soon come.

RECEIVED INJURIES ON ICY WALK; SUES FOR $5,000

Maude A. Emerson of Lowell has been sued for $5,000 by Fred T. Eubanks of Lowell. He alleges that while walking on the sidewalk in front of the defendant's property in Lowell he slipped on snow and ice and received a fractured leg and other injuries.

WAR HEROES LEAVE DEVENS TO MUSIC

Worcester Girl Weds Private in Knights of Columbus Building

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 5.—Amid the plaudits of the men of the Depot Brigade and the strains of martial music played by a band of seventy-six pieces, 1,200 overseas men today marched out of this cantonment with their discharge papers tucked away in their pockets. The men were members of the 71st Artillery corps and new service in France. Many live in Boston and surrounding cities and towns.

Prior to their departure Captain Francis Harrigan, representing Major General Morton, made an address in which he expressed the government's appreciation for the work they did during the war. The exercises were held in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Miss Laura Demois of Worcester became the bride of Private M. J. Donvila of the Quartermaster Corp in the main building of the Knights of Columbus. The ceremony was performed by Lieutenant J. F. Conoly, Roman Catholic chaplain of the camp. Miss Mabel Pitman of Worcester was bridesmaid and P. J. Keith the best man. A reception followed at the bride's home in Worcester.

Private Oscar L. Dupont, an attache of the camp office of the Department of Justice, whose home is in Berlin, N. H., was among those discharged today. He was tendered a farewell banquet at the quarters of the camp detective force and was presented with a handsome gift.

A bowling tournament in which all twelve Liberty Camp have been invited to take place will be held at the Enlisted Men's Club next Tuesday afternoon and evening. Cash prizes will be awarded in the following events: Five man team and two men team singles. An entrance fee of ten cents is exacted of each contestant.

Wills of Cromwell Sisters Identical in Every Detail

New York, March 5.—The wills of the Cromwell sisters, Gladys Louise and Dorothea Katherine, Red Cross workers, who disappeared from the French liner La Lorraine in January, have been filed here.

The wills, which dispose of large estates, are identical, and include provision for a "common disaster or catastrophe, whether simultaneous or otherwise," reading:

"If my said sister and myself die in or as the result of any common disaster or catastrophe, whether simultaneously or otherwise, then and in the event I give and bequeath the following articles now owned by my sister and myself jointly, to the following persons."

The will follows a list of bequests of personal property.

The residue of each is to be divided equally between Seymour Legrand Cromwell, a brother, and Mary Robinson Cromwell, a sister, each of whom receives a specific bequest of $100,000.

TO ESTABLISH R. O. T. C. AT BOSTON COLLEGE

At a meeting of the freshman and Sophomore classes of Boston College the Rev. Charles W. Lyons, S. J., president of the college, announced that he had accepted the offer of the government to establish a unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Boston College.

Father Lyons expresses the hope that all students will enroll and support in time of peace the brilliant reputation which undergraduates and alumni have established in the war just past. The officers who command the Students' Army Training Corps unit will remain in charge of the R. O. T. C.

BRAVES' PREXY SATISFIED HE'S TOTED FAIR WITH SMITH

By NICK FLATLEY.

GEORGE WASHINGTON GRANT, having heard that Red Smith had a kick about the contract offered him for 1919, comes to bat with a few very wise remarks about baseball in general, G. W. G., it might be mentioned before going further, has made quite a hit for himself hereabouts, and the general opinion of fans seems to be that he will do.

"There has been absolutely no sliicing on the Brave contracts," declares George Washington. "I tried to do the fair thing by everybody, and I think I have. The fact that Rudolph signed up so quickly, and also Rawlings, goes to prove that. Both were players accustomed to hold out for every possible advantage. Both have come in on my terms.

"Red Smith, who writes he is sending back his contract, hasn't got a legitimate kick in the world. He was offered exactly the same salary he was paid last year and the year before. And it's a generous salary, too. The figures are smaller because the season is shorter, but he will get exactly as much per month as he did previously.

"He can either sign up, or Blackburne will play third base for us. When I hear from Smith officially I will tell him as much. If he can convince me I'm wrong, all right, but I know he cannot. I went into the salary thing very thoroughly and every player has been offered his full worth. The fact that they're all signing up is the best proof of that. I haven't paid any attention to the economy shout. I'm running this team along my own lines.

"But I haven't any sympathy for the athlete who holds out because it's a habit, or something. It has always been my policy to pay employes what they're worth. And I've followed that since taking over the Braves."

Ruth Knocked Off as Many Runs as Cobb.

PERHAPS the most interesting of the innumerable tables of statistics perpetrated by that demon figurer, E. Lanigan, has to do with the run manufacturers of the American League in 1919. It shows, for instance, that Batting Babe Ruth of the Sox, famous holdout, whacked 64 runners home in one way or another during the campaign. He was outranked by but three athletes, who played every day, and tied with Ty Cobb, who led the league batters, as usual.

The well known batterer scored some fifty-seven markers with hits and the other septet on outs, meaning sacrifice flies. Pretty good for a pitcher when you stop and figure that not another hurler appears in the list of the fifty premier clean-up chaps of the circuit. McInnis, Hooper and Scott follow the Babe, as far as the Sox go, and from the way contracts are coming in, intend to take his lead in the matter of signing also.

Which reminds us that Babe has signed himself up to go to Manchester next Tuesday night and act as second for Chick Hayes, who boxes twelve rounds with Al Shubert there. There's about as much chance of keeping the big fellow out of the spotlight as there is of any cafe proprietor driving three cheers this coming June 30.

Carlson and Parker Box Torrid Draw.

HAD not Harry Carlson been a bit too much inclined to rough it, he would have won the decision from Charley Parker in that much-discussed fight, which packed the Grand Opera House, even to the dust-covered rafters back of the stage. Harry and Charley had one of those quarrels which never saw an idle moment.

They went after each other with the bell, and were banging away after twelve hectic rounds had gone into history. Hammering Charley got an early advantage by pinning his right on Carlson's jaw in the opening chapter. Mister Carlson sat down abruptly and heard the bells singing and things like that. He got up, was wrestled down again, and just barely weathered the round.

He was wavy in the second and stopped a lot of blows with his iron jaw. But after that he recovered and the second half of the scrap was all his. He had Parker baffled with a left stab and a right cross that raised a young mountain over Charley's eye. The latter, however, didn't quit for a minute, though he did make Carlson do most of the leading.

Referee Conley several times had to warn the Brockton battler for roughing in the clinches, and declared after the fight that on that account solely he called it a draw. On points alone, Carlson had the better of it, despite his bad start.

Parker, though, showed the world he can handle the roughest of them, and what looked like a very ill-advised match turned out to be a really great boost for young Charles. He learned a lot of things, and all he lost was a perfectly good pair of white silk trousers, which core to ribbons as the strife wore on.

In the prelims Willis Roberts got another win when Willie Coffee quit in the third; Frank Murray stopped Harry Long. In the third also, and Willie Green had slightly the better of eight tough rounds with Young Briggs, who subbed for Jimmy Fruzzetti.

Next week Frankie Britz and Biff Hang Brady, in twelve rounds, mean one more capacity audience.

HAINES GETTING READY TO SELECT HIS CREWS

Coach Bill Haines of the Harvard varsity crew will pick the first and second university eights and three freshman crews no later than April 1. Jack Manning was expected to resume his duties as coach at Harvard this afternoon, following his discharge from the navy.

TWO AND THREE

PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

THE OLD CORN COB PIPE.

A GUY hasn't got many uncles nowadays, but he sure has a lot of antis.

There is Anti-Everything, Anti-Suffrage, Anti-Funn and Anti-Tobacco. Ever since Daniel turned the lions into a bunch of vegetarians the antis have been trying to make canaries out of sparrows. You can whitewash a crow and call him a dove, but he'll still be a crow at heart. Changing the needle on a graphophone doesn't change the music unless you change the record with it.

* * *

It's difficult to teach an old dog new amendments. And by the time that the Antis get through tacking amendments on the Constitution, the tail is going to be heavier than the kite.

You can beat the bungstarter into a plowshare. But when you start dragging an old-timer away from his pipe you've started something that some other guy is going to finish. Abolishing tobacco won't affect the modern cigarette much.

When Ripling chirped that a flapper is only a flapper but a cigarette is mostly straw, he said a scoopful. Since they sewed those skirmish taxes on tobacco the manufacturers are putting everything into a cigar but a smoke. They've got 'em down to two per cent. tobacco.

* * *

SIR WALTER RALEIGH was the first sapp to blow cigar smoke through his ears. That was a yard of centuries ago. If Walt tried it now the smoke would blow his ears through the cigar.

It's all right to make hay while the sun shines, but not into cigars.

A reformer is a good philanthropic buy. He will give you a ham bone for a ham any day. He'll trade you a lot of clinkers for a lot of coal and will only soak you eleven smackers for carting the ashes away again. What could be fairer? He wishes you the best. All he hopes is that you get round shouldered from looking into ash barrels.

A reformer doesn't figure that he may have some bad habits himself. It's a well known scientific fact that nobody ever heard HIMSELF snoring. You said it.

Let 'em cancel the cigars and pipes, but don't let 'em swindle the old grandpops out of grandpipes. The old man's whiskers will look like the bushes in a deserted village without that old corncob stuck in 'em like a semaphore signalling everything sweet ahead on the Main track and the old trouble freight parked on a siding.

* * *

EVER since old Izaak Walton went fishing on a smoking trip the old boys have hogged the old Morris chair and blown smoke rings through their chin tapestries. When they got the old corncob steamed up to a million, it takes 'em back to the days when fun was compulsory and not a crime. Reforming is all right, but we hate to limp a soft boiled sapp bawl out an old man who has been longer without teeth than the sapp has been with them.

Can you pipe an anti-piper scrambling up a loose runged ladder after an old tad who is smoking a clay pipe upside down and carrying a hod right side up? No, that tad will start laying a building foundation right on that bird's razor-edged brow and wrap the hod around his neck for a lavaliere.

Can you figure a pipe hound trying to surround an ancient stevedore who is equipped with a double-barreled corncob and a two-pronged bale hook? Somebody is going to weaken there and it won't be the bale hook. They're all right stuck in a bale of cotton, but they don't make very healthy earrings.

* * *

WE hope that the next time President Wilson makes a short-trip to America he will flatten those birds who are trying to bilk grandpop out of his corncob pipe. If it's a crime to smoke 'em, then it's a crime to grow 'em.

If it comes to a pinch, the old boys will be packing their whiskers into their pipes and touching off a match to the result. It it's one of those Swedish war matches, nothing will burn but his fingers.

If it's a real match, like they have in the big cities, the guy next door is going to gallop out in his nighty and ring up four alarms on the fire chimes.

So it looks like we'd better smoke out the birds who are trying to smoke out grandpop before the old geezer smokes us out. It's a tough job reforming a reformer, though. Just as useless as turning over a cootie on its back. They have claws on both sides.

GARDNER TO BE AT HIS BEST FOR MIKE YOKEL

There is considerable speculating on the outcome of the wrestling match between Mike Yokel, middleweight champion, and Pinkey Gardner at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. Gardner has undergone a special course of preparation for the bout, as naturally he is eager to strip Yokel of his title.

In addition to the feature number there will be a bout between John Kilonis and Charley Metro.

College and School Chatter

Tufts' wrestling team defeated Tufts, Goddard Gymnasium, Medford, 12-7. Barnard, Gordon and Butler won for Tufts and Kuggeri and Silver scored for Tufts.

Dartmouth and the Aggies are in run off their "unpleasant" B. A. A. relay at the New England A. A. U. meet, East Armory, March 15.

English High's intermediates and juniors won the dual meet from Commerce, East Newton Street Armory, 26-6. Ginsberg and Blagden were double winners.

DUNDEE-BRADY BATTLE CLOSED FOR SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., March 5.—Johnny Dundee, New York lightweight, will receive $1,500 with a privilege of 25 per cent. of the gross receipts, when he meets Ralph (Sing-Bang) Brady, Syracuse favorite, in a ten-rounder at the Syracuse City A. C., March 17.

Joe Dundee, manager of the club, believes the bout will draw close to $5,000.

McGOORTY AND RATNER ARE TO FIGHT IN LONDON

London, March 5.—Eddie McGoorty, American middleweight, has been matched to box Seaman Arthur Townley here March 13. A bout has also been arranged between Augie Ratner also of the American army and winner of the middleweight title in the recent inter-allied tournament and Bob MacCormack for March 27.

NEW 1,000-YARD MARK AIM OF JOIE RAY

By TOM THORP

New York, March 5.—The A. A. U. national championship indoor meet in the 13th Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, Saturday night, gives promise of surpassing the greatest of all indoor gatherings.

Joie Ray, who sped home a winner in the famous Hunter mile at the Boston A. A. games last Saturday night, will be the chief attraction in the middle distance events.

Ray has made many visits to Gotham to display his wares. He is one champion who is ready to meet all comers. Because of this attitude he is the most popular athlete of the day.

Those who saw Johnny Overton clip one and two-fifths from his former record on St. Patrick's Day, 1917, in the race in which he beat Ray, Caldwell and Homer Baker, are of the opinion that if the present mark is bettered Ray will be the athlete to accomplish it.

To push Ray to a new record, five of the fleetest middle-distance runners will be arrayed against him. It has been years since such a well balanced field has been seen in an event of the national 1,000-yard championship.

Joe Stout, another Western speed marvel, will be his chief rival. Stout is considered by critics as the smoothest runner of the present day.

Besides Stout, the Windy City lad, will have to show the way home to Dave Caldwell, Tom Campbell, Marvin Gustafson and Homer Baker.

The remaining events are filled with stars. Frank Shea, the Pittsburgh flyer, is to make his initial appearance of the season in the quarter-mile event. He will battle Ted Meredith for the double furlong title.

Earl Thompson, Bob Thompson, Jack Eller and Frank Loomis will compete in the hurdle events.

Baker Declares (Again) He's Through With Yanks and Game

New York, March 5.—Frank Baker, slugging third baseman of the New York Americans, today informed Manager Miller Huggins that he had definitely retired from baseball.

Huggins announces the release of two young pitchers, Vance and Pierroy, to the Sacramento (Pacific League) club.

The Giants have sold Harry Sallee, veteran left-hander, to the Cincinnati club.

VETO AND HOUCK HEAD BOXING CARD AT LYNN

Willis Houck, Philadelphia welterweight, who has been doing some good work in and around his home town of late months, meets Johnny Veto of Chelsea in the main event on tomorrow night's boxing card at the Casino A. C., Lynn. It's to be a catchweight affair.

Bunch O'Neil of Lynn and Johnny Marto of East Boston, will have it out over again in the semi-final, while Young Gilligan of Salem and Frank Dimeo of the North End, and Tommy Collins of the North End and Jimmy Brennan of East Boston go on in the two slices.

B. C. QUINTET OUT TO GET EVEN WITH AGGIES

Boston College's first and second basketball teams will be on duty in St. Mary's Gymnasium, Cambridge, Friday night. Captain Louis Urban's nifty machine will hook up with the Connecticut Aggies, which defeated the University Heights boys at Storrs last week, while the second team will meet the Fort Andrews quintet.

WHITEMAN AND COONEY SOLD BY RED SOX

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Evidently it was all foolishness that Manager Ed Barrow of the Red Sox does not intend making an effort to line up his hold-outs and plans starting the championship season with a team of rookies, if need be, for upon his arrival in Boston he announced the sales of George Whiteman and Jimmy Cooney.

If the Red Sox are to be anything else but an out-and-out big league outfit at the opening of the coming campaign, meaning that Barrow will want Ruth, Hooper, McInnes, Shean, Mays, Scott, Bush and the rest of his best bets on the job from the drop of the flag, and down in training quarters, too, Big Ed would scarcely be busting up his array of second-string men.

Whiteman goes, exactly as was prophesied by Nick Flatley, American sport expert, all Winter. 'Twas carelessly reported in careless circles that the Texan, the unexpected hero of last Fall's world's series, would stick with the Sox. The canning of Heinie Wagner was to make room for Whitey's retention, it was claimed.

That sounded reasonable enough. But away goes Whitey, out of the big leagues entirely, Toronto being the spot assigned him.

Cooney, who gave fair promise of developing into a very so-so infielder on Jack Barry's '17 team, after being brought up from Providence, goes to Detroit via the waiver route.

Barrow intends remaining in Boston the rest of the week. He states he's willing to be seen at all his holdouts living in town and nearby and admits that perhaps he can be shown why the contract contracts mailed out should be increased.

Big Ed only discussed Harry Hooper when leaving his baseball talk today. It is his claim Pres. Frazee has made the old reliable a splendid offer that Harry is considering it and that he (Barrow) is extremely hopeful the Californian will like it and swing into line.

Del Gainer has come to terms with the Sox and will report in his signed contract. He hopes he's assigned to work in the left meadow and doubtless will be, providing his form at the training camp suits Barrow.

LOUIS URBAN TO GIVE B. C. NINE FIRST DRILL

Boston College's baseball candidates were to report for duty in the University Heights gymnasium this afternoon. The varsity looms up as a particularly good one and Manager Bill Burke and Captain Louis Urban are confident they will turn out a winner. Urban will do the bulk of the catching. He has good aides in Morrissey, Corrigan and Mueller.

Charley Fitzgerald has a rival for work at first base in Bill Mahoney, former Rindge Tech slugger. Bill Bond and Johnny Lahiff appear to be the best shortstops, while Bill Dempsey, Chick McLaughlin of Rindge, and Bill, former Everett High star, are the leading candidates for the three outfield berths.

JAMES MAGOWAN LOSES CRACK TROTTING MARE

Lexington, Ky., March 5.—Sweet Marie, 2:02, famous trotting mare, is dead at the farm of her owner, James R. Magowan of Mt. Sterling, near here. She was twenty-three years old, and since entering breeding ranks had produced but three horses with standard records.

ARLINGTON HIGH FIVE IS TO HAVE BUSY WEEK

The Arlington and Wellesley High School basketball fives were down to clash on the former's floor this afternoon. Watertown High comes to Arlington Friday instead of March 21, as originally arranged. The game with Natick High has been postponed until March 14.

Meehan Is Winner Over Langford in Coast Go

San Francisco, March 5.—Willie Meehan outfought the veteran Sam Langford of Boston in their fourround go here and was given the decision by Referee Jim Griffin.

Meehan had the best of all the four rounds. It was a slashing bout and both fighters, slammed and banged each other from the tap of the gong. Langford's showing was a disappointment.

JAKE DAUBERT SETTLES HIS CASE WITH EBBETS

New York, March 5.—Jake Daubert settled his dispute over financial matters with President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club. John M. Ward was Daubert's attorney. Jake's demands were satisfied, so there will be no lawsuit against the Brooklyn Club, as the player had threatened. It is said that there was $2,000 involved in the dispute.

Daubert has not yet signed with the Cincinnati Club, but now that he has squared matters with Brooklyn he is free to do so and doubtless will send on his signed contract in a few days.

CHICAGO FANDOM IS SET TO PAN JOE JACKSON

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Seems I started something by striving to discover the sentiment of the fans as to whether they want the players who deserted their clubs to go into the shipyards and steel mills last Summer (prior to the work-or-fight order).

The letters have simply poured in and how some of them ever got through the mails without causing a conflagration is a wonder.

Whether the ones who object are the ones who write letters, or whether the proportion holds good, I'm not certain.

Chicago seems all wrought up over the question, but the hottest denunciation of Jackson, Williams, Lynn and others comes from the soldiers and sailors.

One letter from Camp Grant, signed by one man, stated that he had read it to forty of the boys of his company and that they "dared Jackson to try to play."

This letter was from a member of the "Old Eighth," Chicago's crack negro regiment, just back from France awaiting discharge. However, the powers that be are going right ahead planning to play these men.

Getting Chase makes the Giants look better, although it must be conceded that Hal is an uncertain quantity. Whether the trouble with the Cincinnati club and the accusations of which he recently was acquitted will affect his playing is a problem for McGraw and not for us.

Mechanically, however, he goes well the first year with any club and one more year is about all that ought to be expected of him. Chase is thirty-six years old.

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

By Ann Lisle

(Copyright 1919, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

"WHEN you don't care to know what Mr. Dalton said about your sister!" I asked in a tone that I didn't have to struggle very hard to make cold and aloof.

Jim rose and sauntered over to me with a tolerant and pleased air of possession. He put his hand under my chin and tilted my face up for his kiss. Then with a secure air of certainty and leisure, he ran his fingers through my hair.

"Pretty little lilac princess—what vast piece of evidence have you extracted from Pat this day?" he asked indifferently.

Across my mind there flashed a picture of Pat Dalton leaning across the tea table and murmuring with an eager note I'd never heard before in his reckless voice.

"Virginia—what does she say about me? . . . Jeanie never mentions me . . . Jennie—well, I might have known that she wouldn't."

I knew that meant something. But if I told Jim in his present mood he would only laugh at me.

"It really doesn't matter what he said. Virginia isn't the least interested in him any more, is she?" I asked, with seeming innocence.

Jim's eyes darkened to green—the remote green that marks the moments of reserve when he goes into himself and will reveal nothing of what he thinks and feels. I could read his eyes.

At last he answered coldly:

"When Jeanie wants to give you her confidence Anne she will do so, I suppose."

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

"SAY, honey, you sure are taking things by the smooth handle these days! Jeanie tells me you had a wonderful basket of fruit at the new apartment to greet her, and that you were a good sport about Neal's ring. What struck you?" asked Jim a few days after Father Andrew's return home.

"Um—my fairy godmother's fond of you, and I got jealous," I replied half seriously. "Do now every time I look at Virginia I say to myself 'I'll get you yet.'"

"You darling!" Jim cried. Then he reached in to his pocket. "What's suppose you start things off by taking this twenty-five and getting her a real house present—something scrumptious."

"That's a lot of money, Jim." I began, but the ominous flash in Jim's eyes warned me, and I went on in an altered tone: "But I guess we can spare it for your 'Jeanie,' and to make sure I get the right thing I'm going to call in Betty as consulting physician."

I had my first reward when Jim gave me a delighted hug before he went off to the day's work—and my second came with Betty's enthusiastic acceptance.

"Annie, dear, how sweet of you to say you count on my good taste and my interest in my friends. The truth is, I'm a regular Mrs. Pinkie. I'll love shopping with you. How about a bite at the Walgrave first?"

"I'd love it, Betty. Oh, Betty, that's perfect!" I cried almost dazzled by the first results of trying to please.

I met Betty at the Walgrave, and after lunch we set off for a tour of the avenue. But by the time we had come giftless from the dozenth shop, my magnificent twenty-five had shrunk so it looked like pennies instead of dollars. An amber colored enamel box in one shop, a pair of Chinese porcelain candlesticks in a second, and finally an old-silver bonbonniere were pounced upon by Betty as "just the thing" and discarded as each turned out to be priced far beyond my allotment.

In Royal Fashion

"What shall we do?" I cried in despair. "You know just what would appeal to Virginia—and Jim's heart is set in making that appeal. He wants to do this in royal fashion. I can't buy a lace tidy or a paper lamp shade, but they begin to look about my—speed!"

"What a whimsical little thing you are, dear," laughed Betty. The avenue isn't the place for us today—but I've thought of the solution.

"What we'll do is trot to your landlord's studio. Naturally he isn't as expensive as these big shops, and he'll give you a special price, no doubt."

"No doubt," I echoed blankly.

How was I to tell Betty that I didn't like my landlord—that I shrank from the thought of going to the studio? I couldn't register any protest that sounded sane, so I had to let Betty trot me up to the Mason office.

Tom Mason announced that he had just the gift we needed. He produced a wonderful pair of black cloisonne candlesticks, and then, with a meaning smile at me, he laid under them a bit of blue and green and shot-silver silk, heavy and lustrous. It was like the blue robe that lay hidden in the carved chest.

"Wonderful! Virginia will be delighted, and Jimmie's going to trust you with his shopping every time," cried Betty. "The candlesticks are nice. I'll take them if they aren't too expensive," I said as steadily as I could manage. "But that bit of blue doesn't appeal to me."

Tom Mason smiled almost deprecatingly:

"Twenty-five dollars you said you wanted to spend, I think. Well, Mrs. Harrison, I'll let the candlesticks go for twenty—and add the blue brocade table cover for five more. They really belong together."

Just the Thing

"Do take them, Anne; they're just the thing for Virginia," cried Betty, completely satisfied with her bargain.

So they're for Virginia Dalton! Odd—I'm expecting Pat in here presently. Shall we dress to and walk take you to tea," Tom suggested jovially.

I winced—but Betty seemed to find Tom rather amusing.

"Man, dear—but you have a morbid sense of humor!" said she. "Now, if Mr. Harrison is satisfied, I'm ready to conclude our shopping. We will let you send the candlesticks and tapestry to Mrs. Dalton, and just run along."

So I paid for the gift, gave Tom Mason our cards and Virginia's address and hurried out of the shop after Betty.

At the street door Betty stopped in nervous indecision.

"I wish we hadn't left Virginia's address, Anne. Oh, well, it's done now, so I won't worry. But whatever possessed you to imitate your self-admirable bit of tapestry. You surely don't know much about bargaining, child, when you work for such paltry fees! I thought you said Jim insisted on twenty-five—and it would have been silly not to get your money's worth—wouldn't it? Didn't you like that glorious blue and silver?"

"Betty, you ought to be in the District Attorney's office." I laughed, evading a yes or no reply.

"But I didn't feel like laughing, for at the price he had made, those candlesticks almost seemed Tom Mason's present to Virginia rather than mine.

The Test

For a while, as they walked along, neither spoke. The silence became quite strained. At last she said in a hard, tense voice:

"You don't care whether I'm happy or not, do you? We've been married nearly a week, and now you don't care whether I'm happy or not."

"My angel, I do" he said miserably. "But I simply cannot permit you to do that. It is asking too much."

Two tears rolled down her cheeks —one for each cheek.

"You don't! You don't!" she cried, biting her lip tearfully. "You don't care whether I'm happy or not!"

It was more than his tender, loving heart could stand. He gulped guiltily. "Oh, very well, go ahead if you like!" he said gruffly.

And, while she took out her powder puff and powdered her nose and vicinity right on the crowded pavement, he turned his back and looked into the show windows of a piano shop so no one would know he was with her.

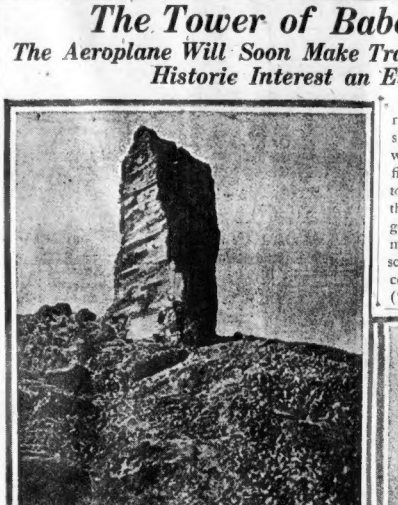
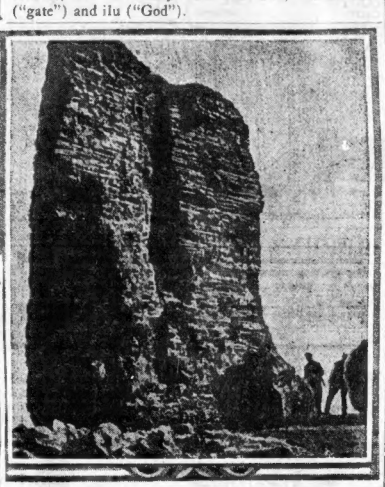
The Tower of Babel as It Is Today

The Aeroplane Will Soon Make Travel Over Places of Biblical and Historic Interest an Everyday Occurrence



The Tower of Babel as Seen from a Distance

The photographs herewith shown are the reputed ruins of the Tower of Babel, that wonderful structure spoken of in Genesis, as erected in the Valley of Shinar, when all men spoke a single language. The people were fired with a hope to build a tower which would reach to heaven, and being visible everywhere would prevent their being scattered. Genesis xi., 7, says: "Go to, let us go down and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech. So the Lord scattered them abroad." The word Babel does not mean confuse, but in reality "Gate of God," from bab ("gate") and ilu ("God").



As It Looks at a Closer View

Conversation at Meals

By Loretto C. Lynch

WHAT does your family talk about when seated at table?

Perhaps you are so close to them that you do not or have not noticed. But let an outsider come to your home. Recently I have been one of the outsiders in some one else's home. It wasn't a home for invalids. It was just the home of a nice, ordinary, everyday American family.

One day a new guest was announced, and when Mrs. Meyer came in I noticed that the new guest did not seem to receive an overdose of welcome as some of the rest of us. She was pale and looked quite disagreeable. In reply to some one's "lovely weather," we were treated to "Nice for some people, but when one has been through the operation I've been through good or bad weather makes little difference."

Have you ever seen any one pour oil upon a flaming fagot? It was like one of these that Aunt Mary's face lighted up! At last some one who had had an operation had come to the house!

"Oh, yes, remarked our newest invalid, they wanted to operate on me at five one morning, but I said I would not allow anyone to operate on me until my husband came. And then," she continued, eagerly, "they gave me a bath and rolled me off the bed on to the stretcher."

Then, there is another variety of conversation which ought to be taboo at the family dinner. That is the subject of the high cost of living. Do you know the woman who scowls when you ask her about to open your mouth overly wide to induct a tempting morsel of food and says, "Oh, dear! oh, dear! Don't know how I can go on feeding you people—food so high, and no one here seems to appreciate how I must pinch and save and scrape to make ends meet."

Have you ever thought seriously as to why that prosperous Mr. Brown, with a perfectly nice wife and three children, takes that homely manicurist out to dinner occasionally? Not he is not the typical villain of the movie, and he probably has only a bit of friendly emotion toward the lady, but he finds her conversation pleasant and her manner cheerful. A normally pleasant company has a decided tonic effect.

Ready-Made Garments

By Rita Stuyvesant

THE shops this season are offering some exceptionally good values in ready-to-wear garments, especially among moderate-priced garments. Very often a woman will go shopping for a suit and will be disappointed because it has inartistic buttons or the wrong kind of a vest.

Or, perhaps, it is a blue georgette frock that is a good bargain, but lacks that dash and charm so essential to smart dressing. The clever woman will purchase her ready-to-wear clothes and then add some interesting touch approved by fashion.

For $12.50 one shop was showing a new Spring dress in all the desired shades of velour. It was a box-coat model with a set-in vest finished on either side by tiny brass buttons. One girl, whom I know, purchased this dress in French blue with a tan vest, and removed the "coat" from the dress lining. The skirt was also cut free from the lining and finished by a belt at the waist.

The coat was then lined with a light figured silk, and for a few dollars this girl had an excellent Spring suit.

A navy blue georgette frock that started out by being quite ordinary for $15 was made gay by hundreds of brilliant red, beige and green beads. It was a simple model with a round, collarless neck and a skirt wall weighted by deep tucks. With a "transfer" embroidery pattern a conventional design of tulips was stamped on the blouse and a clever little border outlined the neck and cuffs.

A bewitchingly beautiful evening gown was made from a simple flesh-colored satin frock that was merely a bodice and a narrow two-piece skirt. It was girdled with silver cloth and had silver shoulder straps. The flesh-colored satin was used as a foundation for a bright flame chiffon overdress with a rather full skirt. The chiffon was further enhanced by bands of dull silver thread lace and there was an adorable little bodice built of chiffon and lace and tiny sleeves. The original girdle of silver was used to finish this captivating dance dress.

Good Health for Women

By Brice Belden, M. D.

ONE of the commonest causes of digestive disorders is faulty carriage of the body and relaxation of the abdominal muscles, with lessening of the abdominal type of breathing. In this type of breathing the downward excursion of the great muscle known as the diaphragm acts directly upon the liver and its ducts, promoting the proper flow of bile and obviating torpidity.

Shallow breathing with the upper part of the chest only, as frequently observed by women, and a relaxed state of the abdominal muscles promote distortion and faulty function.

Free and properly related movements of the stomach, liver and intestines are impossible in most women. This state of affairs is induced or aggravated by the improper mode of dress affected.

Reform should begin with the children. They should be so dressed as to allow the freest motion of the chest, garments to be suspended from the shoulders. The body must be erect when sitting or standing, the chest kept properly raised, and the abdominal muscles not permitted to relax so as to favor the sagging of the internal organs.

The standing attitude of most women is improper, a fact largely concealed by their mode of dress. About one-half of all civilized women suffer from a condition known as enteroptosis, which is characterized by a sagging downward of the stomach, intestines, liver and kidneys, which organs finally remain permanently out of their proper position.

The symptoms of enteroptosis are backache, debility, biliousness, headache, poor complexion and a host of nervous complaints.

The downward push of the organs mentioned finally leads to displacements and derangements of the pelvic organs.

Out-of-door sports in childhood, physical training and proper methods of dress lay the foundation for good health in adult life. This good health should be maintained by vigorous out-of-door life, good food, the avoidance of the worry habit, the cultivation of cheerfulness, sufficient sleep, abstention from alcohol in all forms and emancipation from the corset before it transforms strong abdominal muscles into flabby masses of fat, after which dire result its tyranny must perhaps be borne with, although in such cases specially designed stays will minimize evil consequences.

Sick Four Years, Red Cross Worker Tells How She Got Well

Interesting Case of a Boston Woman

The case of Miss G. I. Baird, Allston, Mass., may bring new hope and health to other sufferers who have stomach worms and do not know what is the matter. A letter from this sufferer tells the story:

"I have been sick almost two years, had four doctors with little or no relief. Some of the doctors said I had enlarged liver, nervous indigestion, too much acid in my system. I was so tired in the morning it seemed as though I could not get dressed and get to work. I was growing thin every day, went from 138 to 111.

"My stomach was sour all the time and some days I could not retain what I ate, while other days couldn't keep anything on my stomach. I coughed so just the minute I went to bed some nights I would not sleep more than one or two hours.

"I was so discouraged I didn't know what to do. One night about three weeks ago, I picked up a paper and saw your Dr. True's Elixir, Family Laxative and Worm Expeller advertised. I made up my mind I had worms and the next day bought a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir and took three teaspoonfuls until I had taken the bottle.

"The day before I took Dr. True's Elixir I thought I should go wild with the crawling sensation in my stomach, evidently worms. The second dose stopped the crawling and the second night I didn't cough. I was surprised at the results.

"I feel like a new person, all my friends say I look so much better, but I don't need to have them tell me, for I know my feelings. I wouldn't have believed any one could feel so much better in such a short time. I tell everyone I know. I can't give your medicine praise enough."

The medicine mentioned in the above letter is made by Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Maine, and is called Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. On sale everywhere medicine is sold. Recommended by many druggists who have used it in their own family.

What's a Good Wife?

A QUESTION OF UNIVERSAL INTEREST

Beatrice Fairfax Discusses the Qualifications Which She Thinks Make a Fine Helpmate

By Beatrice Fairfax.

DO American girls make good wives?

Naturally, the answer comes in a chorus of affirmative.

But isn't it worth while to stop and think what we mean by a "good wife?" Different points of view prevail in regard to this really very serious question. And one of these points of view is forcibly expressed by a young man who has just written me a letter of protest. Let me quote it:

"I am young and a foreigner," he tells me. "And I often notice that in the evening paper a young lady asks you for advice about marrying some foreign young man.

"Miss Fairfax, for humanity's sake I wish you would try to show the American young ladies that it is very foolish to marry a foreigner. The foreign young man is used to see his own sister at home learning how to take care of men's clothes (that is, repair them and sew on buttons), and also learning to cook.

"Therefore, when a foreign young man asks an American girl to marry him he thinks she will be able to make a comfortable home. But after three weeks of married life he discovers that she knows absolutely nothing, and their married life becomes a nightmare for both, as I have often seen.

"Now please do not think that I am by any means trying to belittle American girls, but I wish to bring this to their very hearts. While I am a foreigner, my blood is for America, and so is my citizenship."

Now this young man who is so shocked and indignant at the buttonlessness of the young American wife's work basket, and who traces to this such tragic consequences, has some facts on his side.

It is, of course, quite true that the European girl is trained to be a "good wife" in a sense that no American girl is. No housewifely art is omitted from her education. A thorough knowledge of cooking is acquired as a matter of course. And at the same time that she learns plain sewing, darning and embroidery, the complete science of sewing on buttons is taught her with the utmost care. The claim that this young foreigner makes for European girls is perfectly well founded.

But we shouldn't of course agree with him that American girls in general are ignorant of these things. Most American girls are taught how to cook and sew—by school, if not at home. They are given "domestic science" courses which mean that they are taught the reasons that lie behind household management. They are taught the chemistry of cooking and the science of sanitation. That is to say, of healthful cleanliness. They are equipped with foundation principles and if they are intelligent enough to apply them, they emerge from their schooling better housekeepers, I should say, than their grandmothers were.

The average American girl of today seems to me reasonably well prepared to undertake the management of a household. And I wouldn't concede for a moment that she is lacking, or that she is unwilling to apply her skill for her young husband's benefit.

Wives—and Nothing Else

Still—there is a difference. Let me put it into words.

The European girl is taught to sew on buttons so that she will be useful to the man she marries—so that he will find her a satisfactory seamstress, and won't be able to complain of her.

The American girl learns the use of the needle because it is practical—to some degree an essential accomplishment. She knows that she will need to sew on her own buttons, and she hopes to be a generally useful person in the world. When she marries her husband is entitled to profit by any skill she has.

Also, the European girl is taught to cook in order that her husband may some day be well fed. She is carefully prepared to be some man's cook—his servant, in fact.

The American girl is taught to cook because the preparation of food is something that every woman should understand. She isn't taught the multiplication tables in order that she may some day recite them to a husband who wasn't taught seven times seven. Likewise, she isn't taught combinations of eggs and milk just to please the palate of some man she has never seen.

It is very different, isn't it?

In fact, my correspondent has called our attention to two wholly opposed systems of education for girls. It then becomes a question of which one prefers.

For myself, I'll admit that I prefer the American way. I prefer that girls should be taught useful occupations for their own sake.

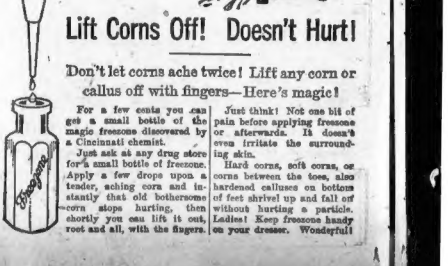
What of American Wives

Perhaps, under our system, every young husband isn't as comfortable physically as if the girl he had married had been forced to study the question of men's convenience all her life. But I believe she is, in the real sense, a better wife. A wife who has learned to respect herself, to think for herself, to look for herself. A wife who witnesses not merely to be a patient sewer on of masculine buttons, a darner of masculine socks, preparer of masculine dinners, but to live a big, active, far-reaching life of her own—to be a capable mother, a useful citizen, a fellow-worker, perhaps, of some profession or other or-near.

Perhaps this kind of wife won't even have time to sew on her husband's buttons. In that case, she will have the intelligence and resourcefulness to hire this done.

IF too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they can not conceal.

There is but one alternative,—reduction. It is to be longer necessary to go in for starvation, dieting and exhaustive exercising. There is a safer, surer, more pleasant way. Just take one little harmless Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and at bed time and you'll literally see your fat melt away. Tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients as the original Marmola prescription capable of reducing the overfat body at the rate of two, three, or four pounds a week without the slightest ill effects. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, or send to the Marmola Co., 466 Woodward Building, Detroit Mich., and you will receive for $1 a full case—enough to start you well on your way to happiness. Try it.



Lift Corns Off! Doesn't Hurt!

Don't let corns ache twice! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers—Here's magic!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic freezone discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly that old bothersome corn stops hurting, then shortly you can lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottoms of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. Ladies! Keep freezone handy on your dresser. Wonderful!

GOV'T REJECTS COPPER SALE AGREEMENT?

Washington Statement at Variance With the Terms Announced

War Department officials, it is stated in Washington, will not approve of the tentative agreement between copper producers and government representatives reached in New York on Monday whereby metal interests were to sell the 140,000,000 pounds bought by the United States at the war price of 26 cents a pound at market rates within fifteen months.

After the agreement reached by the War Department, officials said it would not be approved as it stands. It was further stated as explaining governmental objections that producers want the government copper given federal storage while they be permitted to supply the market from their own stock and coming output. Government officials, according to what comes from Washington, want a proposition of government copper sold with producers' copper in the open market.

REPORT PERPLEXING.

The Washington statement is perplexing in view of the statement given out in New York after the which reads:

"Producers representing 90 per cent. of copper production of the country and representatives of the director of sales of the War Department have reached a tentative agreement whereby the producers will market for the government all the surplus government copper at market prices over a period depending upon business conditions, but not to exceed fifteen months."

It was said in Boston that government metal is to be marketed by producers through regular sales channels on a pro rata basis. "An agency handling 75 per cent. of the entire output in 1918 will market 25 per cent. of the government metal and so on," it was stated. "Settlement with the government for this copper will be based upon the monthly average prices of the Engineering and Mining Journal."

PRICE LOWER; NO SALES.

As regards price, small interests have again lowered their quotation, offering metal at 14½ cents a pound, while large interests are asking 15 cents. No business of consequence is being transacted by any copper seller, it is reported. This conflicts with a statement from New York, reading:

"It is stated authoritatively that as effort by a consortium of copper interests to place a contract for 5,000,000 pounds for future delivery at the prevailing offering level of 15 cents has been rejected by one of the large copper producing and selling interests. The officials of this concern apparently are of the belief that the turn in the market is about to come and therefore are not willing to accept distant deliveries at the prevailing quotation."

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, March 5.—The sub-treasury lost $963,000 to banks on Tuesday, reducing the cash net gain since Friday to $1,588,000.

N. Y. COTTON EXCHANGE NOT RE-OPENED TODAY

New York, March 5.—The boards of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange this morning decided that on account of the new cotton legislation it would be impossible to resume business until tomorrow.

This action was due to the passage of the new Lever cotton amendment, which was hitched as a rider to the wheat guaranty bill. It caused much confusion in cotton circles here today and resulted in the board of managers deciding to delay re-opening the exchange until it could formulate a plan for beginning trade under the new law, which became effective immediately, and to provide for the liquidation of all contracts.

The Bureau of Markets at Washington had advised the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges the Lever amendment means that all spot cotton delivered on new style future contracts will be classed by the government spot. Cotton delivered on old style contracts will be classed by exchanges as heretofore, with right to appeal to government until new old style contracts are liquidated.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 5.—Corn opened ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher. Oats were ⅛ higher. Provisions opened lower. Opening prices were: Corn, March 1.34½; May 1.39 to 1.39¼; July 1.34¼ to ⅜. Oats, May 66⅛; July 59¾. Pork, May at 41.15. Lard, May 32.25. Ribs, May 31.40.

RAILS LED THE RECESSIONAL MOVEMENT

Rubbers Active and Lower While Oils Fail to Hold Gains

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks became weak in New York this afternoon, after a morning marked by recessions or irregularity and one rally that affected the list as a whole. At midday selling pressure became stronger and the market showed less resistance. Before 1 o'clock prices were at their lowest level. Rubbers were active and weak, oils had failed to hold gains and rails continued to yield, and receded as a group, although Bethlehem B still showed some strength, and equipments were also off. Motors were among the weakest issues. Most specialties which have been active and strong reflected the general price trend. Trading was on good volume during the morning, especially in the rails, but it decreased at noontime and was comparatively quiet later.

DECLINES WERE THE RULE.

By 2 o'clock declines were the rule and included General Motors, 2¾ at 152½; Studebaker, 1¾ at 58⅝; Pierce Arrow, 1¾ at 44¾; Goodrich, 1¾ at 81; U. S. Rubber, 1¾ at 80¾; Texas Co., 1¼ at 81¾; Union Pacific, ¾ at 130¾, Southern Pacific, ⅝ at 100¾, Chesapeake & Ohio, ¾ at 56⅝; Anaconda, ¾ at 59⅝; Utah Copper, 1¼ at 67¾; U. S. Steel, ⅝ at 92½; Baldwin, 1¾ at 119¾; Baldwin, 1 at 78¾; American Sugar, ¾ at 117¾; Kelly-Springfield, 1¾ at 118. After selling down to the period highest; Pan American, ⅛ at 179⅝, and Industrial Alcohol, ⅛ at 112¾.

Among gains were British Petroleum, ¼ at 17¾; Royal Dutch, 1 at 93; United Cigar Stores, ¼ at 132½, after selling at the record high of 132¾; Hide & Leather preferred, ⅛ at 89¾, after selling at the record high of 101½; Marine preferred, ⅝ at 103, and Bethlehem B, 1 at 85¾.

COPPERS LOWER IN BOSTON.

The Boston market opened steady but later reflected weakness in New York. Coppers declined, particularly Wolverine. Swift was active and higher. Dealings were in small lots. Up 11 points to 11, lower to 7 points. Off 1 at 5½; Old Dominion, ⅛ at 70; Calumet & Arizona, ⅛ at 57½; Stewart, ⅛ at 25¾; New Haven, ⅛ at 28; and Boston Elevated, ⅛ at 67¾. Gray was up 1¼ at 157; United Shoe, ⅛ at 47¾; Copper Range, ⅛ at 73¾, and American Telephone, ⅛ at 106¾.

SELL AT RECORD HIGH PRICES.

American Hide & Leather preferred and Kelly-Springfield opened at high-record prices and Baldwin Locomotive still further. United Cigar Stores also sold at its record high, but not at its initial record. Subsequent prices for the year were made by Central Leather and Bethlehem B. U. S. Steel moved up and down at 1125/8, a point during the morning. Sumatra was the weakest tobacco issue, but General Motors was also under loss in its group. Utah was the weakest copper, while St. Paul was the furthest of any rail. Associated Dry Goods was active and advanced. Butte & Superior was another active issue and higher, while American Woolen common touched the record high price it sustained yesterday.

UNCERTAINTY A BEAR FACTOR.

Uncertainty over the situation at Washington is operating in favor of the bears and while the market rallied quickly after the break in prices which followed the adjournment of Congress, showing more underlying strength than in the December break, with generally, there is more timidity as regards speculation on the part of the public and a more aggressive spirit on the part of the professional element which has been for a decline. There is said to have been no change in sentiment on the part of financial leaders who have accumulated stocks on recessions. The market presents more than ordinary interest when it opened today, owing to the wide diversity of opinion as to how it would act under the present unfavorable circumstances. It showed more strength than bears expected. Offerings were absorbed quite easily and while prices receded losses ruled small.

RAILROADS WERE WEAK.

At the end of half an hour the market was steadier and strong in spots. Advances, however, were mainly confined to specialties which have featured trading for several weeks. Railroads were weak and reflected the effect of filibustering in the Senate which deprived them of $750,000,000 government money for defraying expenses. What will be the next Federal move in regard to them is exceedingly doubtful. Coppers were quiet and lower as a class. Steels were mixed as to price changes and had a narrow range. Oils and shipping issues were higher, as were leathers. Around Wall Street it was said that many traders and others are still in a mood to buy standard stocks on every reaction, and that while political developments might retard a business readjustment, confidence in high circles as to a prosperous industrial revival is as positive as ever.

London Stock Market

London, March 5.—The stock market was dull today, and consols and foreign security prices were: Consols, 58 7-16, off 1-16; 5½ per cent. war loans, 99 7-16, off 1-16; 4½s, 102½; French 5s, 94¾, off ½; Russian 5s, 50, off ½; 4s, 33¾, off ¼.

The treasurer of Fall River, Mass., will receive bids until 12 m., on Wednesday, March 5, for the purchase at discount of a temporary loan of $500,000 issued in anticipation of taxes, dated March 5 and maturing November 13, 1919.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

A dividend of Two Dollars per share will be paid on Tuesday, April 15, 1919, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Friday, March 14, 1919.

On account of the Annual Meeting the transfer books will be closed from Saturday, March 15, to Tuesday, March 18, 1919, both days included.

D. D. MILNE, Treasurer.

Eagle & Blue Bell Mining Company declared a dividend of 3 cents a share, payable March 20 on stock of record March 10. The previous dividend was 10 cents paid last September.

COTTON COSTS A HANDICAP FOR MILLS

Small Demand for Goods and Market Is Overstocked

The cotton goods market is in unsatisfactory shape because the government holds large supplies bought during the war and not needed by it now, while "second hands" are also overstocked and public demand is at a minimum. The trade complains of low prices and the trade situation is so unfavorable in general that the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants has adopted a resolution calling for curtailment of mill output.

It is said that prices have fallen already to an extent not generally realized. Before prices were fixed at Washington in June last at from 33 to 36 cents a pound, cotton goods sold at a dollar or more. Current quotations on print cloths are equivalent to a general range of 49 to 53 cents.

"They are not only under normal parity, with sheetings and other goods, but it is said, "but are below the prevailing cost of production which, with spot cotton at 37 cents and mill costs as they are, are to be day between 34 and 40 cents a pound.

CURTAILMENT HAS BEGUN.

Curtailment has already been mill curtailment at most mill centers and further restrictions are expected in the near future. Some changes there is change for the better. In regard to conditions confronted by manufacturers, it is said:

"The mills, which last year had to turn largely to war work only to suffer considerable cancellations with the armistice, have sought to minimize accumulation of goods when demand was hesitant and prices sagging. Some trade interests find themselves facing material losses on previously acquired holdings; and some speculative buyers, as also certain South American houses, are rumored to have been diligent and ingenious in trying to "get out of" contracts made before the armistice.

BIG EARNINGS CUT DOWN.

"While cotton mills have been showing big earnings on past business—three New Bedford mills just reporting average dividends of 16 per cent. for 1918 and total earnings nearly twice those of the drop in prices so far in 1919 to be, was in other commodities, severe enough to whittle down profits materially. Meanwhile many inquiries to mills have proved to be but "feelers" from interests loaded up with goods on which they take an inevitable loss, and on which they seek just to shade their quotations. Goods that cost 5 3-16 cents have recently been refused at three cents."

Dividend Declarations

Hercules Powder Company declared quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., and extra of 2 per cent. on common stock, payable March 20 to stock of record March 15.

We Gain Nothing Under the League. We Give Up the Monroe Doctrine

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

During President Wilson's meeting with the Foreign Relations Committees of the Senate and House to discuss the proposed League of Nations the President was asked by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut:

"How many drafts of the constitution for this proposed league were presented to the Paris conference of nations?"

The President replied that there had been four, one by Great Britain, one by France, one by the United States, and one by Italy.

Senator Brandegee then inquired:

"Which one was accepted?"

The President replied:

"The British."

Senator Brandegee asked what was done with the rejected drafts. President Wilson said:

"They were put aside."

Representative Ragsdale of South Carolina then inquired:

"Mr. President, what does the League of Nations propose to do as regards Ireland?"

The President answered:

"The question of Ireland is a domestic matter outside the province of the League of Nations."

The fact stated as to the authorship of the League of Nations' constitution makes the second statement superfluous.

We have often paid tribute to the great ability of British diplomatists and to the admirable singleness of purpose with which they always make BRITISH ADVANTAGES the paramount object in every negotiation, in every foreign treaty, and in every war in which Great Britain engaged.

Their splendid idea is that there can be no higher interests in the world than THEIR OWN COUNTRY'S.

If as a result of this great war we should adopt the constitution of the League of Nations drawn by Great Britain we should voluntarily, and with our eyes open to all the ultimate possibilities, enter a foreign league in which we should ALWAYS BE SUBORDINATE AND INFERIOR IN VOICE TO GREAT BRITAIN. She, with her dominions, would always have among the body of delegates five times as many representatives and votes as the United States.

And we should enter an executive council within the league in which the United States would have one vote and eight foreign nations one vote apiece, so that on any question, involving even our own American interests, the vote would be EIGHT TO ONE AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

President Cleveland, in a memorable message to Congress, once referred to the Monroe Doctrine as making "our fiat the law on this hemisphere." Under the proposed League of Nations our fiat would cease to be law on this hemisphere, and also in determining our foreign policies. In any vote cast by that executive council, Japan, now the ally of Great Britain, would have equal rights with the United States to fix American foreign policies, although we do not allow Japanese to become citizens of the United States or to own property.

In the hundred years since the Monroe Doctrine was adopted there have been at least eighty wars. WE HAVE BEEN DRAWN INTO JUST TWO OF THEM, in both cases because our ships were attacked on the high seas. Under the proposed league, WE SHOULD PARTICIPATE IN ALL FUTURE WARS.

If Ireland should declare her independence, as we did, we should be bound in honor to furnish troops to England to fight Ireland if needed. The same is true of Canada. It would be our duty to support Great Britain against Canada.

If a "mandatory" is delivered to us that we must govern or supervise Persia, or Togoland, or any other backward colony or province, in any remote part of the world, such "mandatory" will be compulsory, according to the plain English of the constitution and according to the definite interpretation of the constitution of the league by Senator Lodge and Senator Reed, two of the ablest statesmen-lawyers in the Senate—one a Republican and the other a Democrat.

We could not refuse such a mandate without dishonor or without that dangerous repudiation of our pledges which would, IPSO FACTO, make us at war with all the thirty or forty nations of the earth in the league.

The size of our army and navy, our kind of coast defences, our Panama Canal forts, the question whether or not we are to be allowed to build submarines for purposes of coast defences, would be "determined" not by Congress or by the American people, but by the League of Nations, IN WHICH THE UNITED STATES WOULD CAST ONE VOTE AND FOREIGN NATIONS EIGHT VOTES; "and these limits (of national defence) WHEN ADOPTED shall not be exceeded WITHOUT THE PERMISSION of the executive council" (Article VIII.).

The Monroe Doctrine would be annulled. If it became necessary for our peace and security after ten years of anarchy in Mexico to pacify that country, or any other, like Cuba, for instance, whose peace and good order we have guaranteed and have twice intervened to enforce, the votes of Japan, Italy, England and France would decide our course as a nation.

No amendment to the league constitution is possible without the approval of ALL the nine nations in the executive council, and three-fourths of the body of delegates outside the executive council (Article 25). In the body of delegates Great Britain would cast five times as many votes as the United States, and in the executive council a single veto by either Great Britain or Japan, for instance, would defeat any amendment proposed by the United States.

It would be apparently within the power of eight delegates, representing eight foreign nations, to order the United States army and navy to any corner of the earth to fight, even if our own delegate, our own President, our Congress and our one hundred millions of people were opposed to such action.

No reference is made to the President of the United States or to the Congress of the United States to determine how, when or where the war powers of the nation, now vested solely in Congress, shall be used.

If the league in its proposed form, guaranteeing the territorial sovereignty of all nations belonging to it, had existed in 1898, Cuba would still be a Spanish dependency, subject to mediaeval laws, tyrannies and oppressions. We could not have set her free, although our act was an unmixed blessing to Cuba and free from any taint of avarice, acquisitiveness, or selfishness on our part. But such benevolent intervention would have been unlawful, because the league itself would have guaranteed the sovereignty of Spain.

If such a league had existed in 1846 Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, most of California and Colorado would still be a part of Mexico, and still living in ignorance, tyranny and oppression.

In each of the twenty-six articles of the proposed constitution of the league, drawn by the consummately clever British diplomatists, the phraseology adapts itself to the special needs of Great Britain, and not a single phrase makes recognition either of the special needs or traditional policies of the United States.

We do not criticise nor blame British statesmen for this omission. They attend zealously to THEIR business. But what will the people of the United States think of it? Will they ratify it?

By that constitution England gains the United States as an ally in maintaining British control of India, Ireland, and all her dependencies in all quarters of the world against any attack (Article X.).

To the Rescue of the Marooned

Mayor Peters and Fight for Lower Electricity Rates

The appeal of Mayor Peters to the City Council to appropriate $10,000 for securing expert testimony in aid of the long continued fight which the American, with the able assistance of the Post, has made for lower rates for electricity is a fresh proof of the good judgment of the voters in electing a mayor who is independent of corporation influences and whose constant aim is the good of the entire community.

The American and its counsel, Grenville S. MacFarland, personally, have contributed and will continue to contribute liberally in time and money to this effort to liberate the people of Boston and New England from the extortions of the Edison monopoly, although such attacks upon intrenched and interlaced profiteering combines raise up powerful enemies for the Hearst papers and involve indirect losses in advertising patronage and otherwise much greater than the direct expenses of these crusades in the public interest. But the public utility corporations have shrouded their operations in a maze of doctored statistics which only costly expert investigation can unravel. The parsimony of the Legislature has made regulation by commissions a failure by refusing to provide in any adequate measure for such expert assistance, the cost of which is beyond the limit of sacrifice that any individual citizen or any newspaper can reasonably be expected to make.

If the City Council follows the lead of Mayor Peters in this matter it will set the Legislature a much-needed example of independence and public spirit, and incidentally will make an investment which will in the end prove extremely profitable for the taxpayers.

Letters to the Editor

Golden Rules

Editor Boston American:

Fairly testing the two golden rules, commonly distinguished as the Chinese and the Christian, we find the former is preferable as a moral maxim. It is the cardinal point in all humane conduct—don't hurt that man; put yourself in his place. You see it has a touch of sympathy in it, and moreover it is exactly in line with the voice of conscience. Surely neither moralist nor divine would advise us to disregard that voice as a negative quantity. It is applicable to every condition of life. It is the underlying principle of the now famous fourteen points. The nations pledge themselves not to tread on one another's toes. Thus far they follow the eastern precept, which you term negative. At the same time, they are openly planning keen trade competition within the charmed circle, which is to set at naught that more sacred admonition of the Galilean. It may be positive, but it is totally unworkable. Reduced to its simplest terms, it seems to lack wisdom. I might wish that another person would remember me in his will; but that fact would never lead me to remember him in mine. And so on through the whole catalogue. The rule from the far Orient is an antidote for rancor and aggression, for which there does not seem to be any balm in Gilead just at present, if there ever was. The more modern maxim teaches extravagant kindness. If we carefully and conscientiously observe the one, the other will regulate itself. Let us bear in mind that the bulk of laws in every country, including eight of the Ten Commandments, are of the same negative character as Quong Fu Tee's moral corner-stone; but surely they are not to be despised on that account. It always appeared to me that the institution of foreign missions was in itself the most flagrant violation of the New Testament golden rule: No denominations engaging in it would wish for the heathen to do the same to them.

Prohibition Referendum

Editor Boston American:

In a recent American you ask for the referendum on the question of League of Nations, shall it be adopted by this country? I noticed that you did not say anything in favor of the referendum when the question of National Prohibition came up, did you? If the representative lawmakers of the people are capable of voting on the question of prohibition, why are they not capable of voting on the League of Nations?

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

WHEN HE was a boy.
AND LIVED at home.
THEY KEPT horses.
AND HE knew all about them.
AND WASN'T afraid.
WHEN THEY'D put their ears back.
AND COULD walk right up to them.
AND LOOK at their teeth.
AND TELL you their ages.
AND FOR twenty years.
HE'D BEEN in a city.
AND IT just so happens.
AT THE present time.
HE'S HERE on the ranch.
FOR A week or two.
AND THE other day.
WE WENT to the village.
IN THE single buggy.
AND HE drove.
AND SO far as I could see.
HE DROVE all right.
BECAUSE HE kept in the road.
WHICH, HOWEVER.
THE HORSE might have done.
IF SHE'D been alone.
AND ANYWAY.
WE GOT to the village.
AND DID our shopping.
WHICH INCLUDED tobacco.
AND THE city papers.
AND STARTED home.
AND AT a corner.
IN THE village outskirts.
AN AUTOMOBILE passed us.
AND OUR horse shied.
AND WE went in the ditch.
AND HIT a post.
AND THERE was a crash.
AS OF something breaking.
AND THE next moment.
MY FRIEND, the driver.
WAS FLAT in the ditch.
ON HIS stomach and face.
AND THE horse had jumped.
AND HAD broken the harness.
AND WAS running wildly.
IN THE direction of home.
AND I was there.
SITTING IN the seat.
AND HOLDING tight.
AND I stayed right there.
UNTIL I was sure.
THE HORSE wasn't coming back.
AND BY that time.
MY FRIEND had arisen.
AND WASN'T hurt.
AND WE were completely surrounded.
BY THE village populace.
AND THEY asked us questions.
AND EXAMINED the buggy.
AND PICKED up straps.
FOR A block away.
AND BROUGHT them to us.
AND A kindly gentleman.
WITH AN automobile.
OFFERED TO take us home.
AND WE accepted.
AND JUST as we left.
WE HEARD a little girl say.
THAT K. C. B. and a gentleman.
HAD HAD a runaway.
WHICH WAS more or less true.
EXCEPTING FOR the fact.
THAT AFTER the horse left.
I WAS merely a spectator.

I THANK you.

...ne. He is for the peace league for many reasons, and especially because it would dispose of "the spectre of Bolshevism." That is a very real spectre to Mr. Taft; he called it "hard, cruel, radical and destructive" and the flow of adjectives came readily. You have seen the picture of the little boy in his night drawers going upstairs in the half-dark, looking back in terror to see if a bear is following. That is how Mr. Taft feels about Bolshevism.

Mrs. Wilson watched her husband from a box facing the stage and at least half the audience looked at her more than at the men. One most earnest American lady, seated under the gallery, leaned forward most dangerously, twisted her spine and neck to look up and out, and backwards, saying, "I know I shall fall on my nose, but I don't care."

She pulled herself in to report to others in her row that Mrs. Wilson had a big bunch of purple orchids close to her face, a black lace dress, tight all around, and that she looked sad and sweet.

Mr. Taft and the President follow the sensible custom and make themselves look as much as possible like everybody else, long dress coat, white waist-coat and tie, patent leather shoes. Mr. Wilson sat with his right leg crossed over his left and applauded constantly and gently as Mr. Taft spoke. Each shook hands with and congratulated the other at the end of his speech.

The President has not the slightest doubt that the peace league will go through. "Criticism puzzles me, but does not frighten me."

Those that quote Washington on "Entangling Alliances" against Mr. Wilson's league have not read what Washington said, according to the President. Both Taft and Wilson agreed that Washington objected not to alliances, but to favoritism for any nation, entanglements with one nation as against another.

Said Mr. Wilson, "The thing he (Washington) longed for, we are about to supply—an arrangement that will disentangle all the alliances in the world."

The President told the great crowd that opposition to the league by Senators would prove futile, that he would bring back a peace treaty and a peace covenant or league so closely interwoven that it would be impossible to separate one from the other. He would leave to the Senators the responsibility or refusing to make the peace that the country wants.

The President's first words, taken from a song played by the band, were "I won't come back 'till it's over, over there." And again, half way through his speech, he said, "I do mean not to come back until it's over, over there."

Republicans anxious to be called in extra session must try to be patient.

The President said to them last night: "I hear from critics only this—would it not be dangerous for us to help the world?"

"I say it would be fatal to us NOT to help the world."

It was a big meeting, packed, about half men and half women. Many were disappointed, for the expected fireworks, not realizing that efficient machines work without much noise or friction. They enjoyed Cimini and the other Italian gentlemen who sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," with very high notes, and a low bow, even lower than Caruso's.

The President made a fight speech all the way through, not a placating word in it. His foundation stone was "I know the American people and what they want. My critics do not know, but they will find out."

Those were not the exact words, but were the exact meaning.

His exact words were:

"I utter his solemn warning, not threat. The great forces of the world do not threaten, they operate."

Mr. Wilson wonders "where they (his critics) have closeted themselves that they have not come in touch with the world's pulse, its thought and feeling."
